PSU students win support

HARRISBURG (AP) — Some 60 black students from Pennsylvania State University were promised help by Democratic legislative leaders Wednesday in their demands for a "more black oriented" school policy.

Telling the student delegation he was in full agreement with their goals and current methods, House Majority Leader K. Leroy Irvis, D-Allegheny, promised them a personal action program including:

- Seeking a House investigation of Penn State's policies on admissions and faculty hiring to determine if sufficient attempts are being made to open the school to more blacks.
- Going to Penn State in February to meet personally with President Eric A. Walker and the students.
- Opposing, in his position as majority leader, any state appropriations for the school until he feels progress is being made in meeting the students' demands.

— Seeking addition of Negroes to Penn State's currently all-white, 36-man Board of Trustees.

Irvis, the first Negro to become House majority leader in Pennsylvania, told the black students he did not forget he was a Negro when he became majority leader last month.

He said he had already initiated a plan of action before the students came to Harrisburg in the latest of a series of activities to dramatize their pleas.

Irvis produced a copy of a letter to Walker dated Monday in which he asked the president of the nearly all-white, state-related university what programs the school had in the area of black relations.

Portrait of feeling

Drummer Henry Glass of the Olympia Brass Band in New Orleans, takes a last wistful look Wednesday towards the casket of his old friend Alcide "Slow Drag" Pavageau, at the climax of a jazz funeral. Pavageau, 80, was the Grand Marshall of the Eureka Brass Band, and carrying a flowered parasol was the central figure of that band during his lifetime, as he strutted before it, leading the dirge for funerals. Warned of legal rights

Pueblo skipper faces military violation

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The Navy told the captain of the USS Pueblo Wednesday that he is suspected of violating military law when North Koreans seized the intelligence ship. The Navy also warned that anything he says about certain aspects of its capture could be held against him.

But Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher said he would continue telling a court of inquiry "full details" of the capture, death of a crewman and imprisonment of others. Capt. William Newsome, counsel for the Navy, quoted this regulation to Bucher: "The commanding officer shall not permit his command to be searched by any person representing a foreign state nor permit his command to be removed from the command by such a person, so long as he has the power to resist.

Bucher had testified that the Pueblo surrendered to North Korean gunboats after being fired upon and followed them into one of that nation's ports without manning his ship's guns or otherwise resisting. He said resistance would have caused needless deaths from enemy guns at point blank range.

Newsome made his statement as Bucher was saying that North Koreans boarded the Pueblo in Wonsan Harbor, ordered his men at gunpoint to sit on the deck and Bucher told them that he had 83 men aboard.

"At the time the North Koreans first set foot on your ship did you any longer have the power to resist?" asked Bucher's civilian attorney, Miles Harvey.

"No, I did not," Bucher replied.

After Bucher was advised of his right to remain silent, Harvey said: "Cmdr. Bucher remains fervent in his desire to tell this court the full details of 23 January and thereafter," referring to the date of the capture last year.

Nixon to act to curb inflation

GOP act to defend appointee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators defended Secretary of the Interior-designate Walter J. Hickel as "consumer oriented" Wednesday while critics contended he is unfit for the job.

But it appeared virtually certain the Alaskan governor will be confirmed by a substantial margin when his nomination is voted on Thursday, a day after the 11 other members of President Nixon's Cabinet were sworn into office.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield obtained unanimous consent for a vote on Hickel at 1 p.m. Thursday. Some 10 to 20 senators are expected to vote against the nominee.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, joining the ranks of those committed against Hickel, said he hopes in doing so to impress on the Nixon administration "the widespread concern on conservation policy which exists throughout the country and the deep concern on national funds policy which exists in New England and Maine."

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., has urged rejection.

Czech hunger strike spreads

PRAGUE (AP) — Hunger strikes spread to several Czechoslovak cities Wednesday in support of the ideals of Jan Palach. Plans were made for a nationwide observance of his funeral and there was new evidence of public resentment at the presence of Soviet occupation troops.

While police tried to break up a hunger strike in Prague, there were reports of other strikes called by students in Ceske Budejovice, Karlovy Vary, Brno and Bratislava.

Police moved in early Wednesday morning and forced a group of Prague strikers to take down three tents because they didn't have a permit. Many of the strikers left, but some remained in the enclosure in front of the fountain where Palach burned himself last Thursday.

Police reinforcements at Wenceslas Square kept people from gathering in front of the strikers. At the statue of St. Wenceslas students maintained their day and night vigil with Czech flags and a black flag.

The flag bearers, working in brief relays, stood amid piles of flowers in memory of the 21-year-old student who died Sunday.

Prague radio reported a 23-year-old locksmith in the southern Moravian city of Brno set himself afire early in the day and was hospitalized in good condition with second-degree burns over 12 per cent of his body.

The Czech Trade Union Council, representing 4.1 million workers, announced that work will be stopped for five minutes Friday.

Palach's coffin will be on display Friday and the funeral will be Saturday. Students planned a "farewell ceremony" prior to the private service.

Federal budget being cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy conferred with President Nixon Wednesday, then promised that the new administration will move decisively, but without abrupt or blunt action that could "bring unnecessary unemployment," to offset inflation.

In a statement endorsed by Nixon, Kennedy said:

"We have inherited inflationary pressures that are seriously distorting the economy and financial markets. That inflation must, and will, be contained."

Budget Director Robert P. Mayo reported earlier that he is at work on an effort to cut the federal budget sent to Congress by President Johnson. He left open the possibility that budget reductions might make possible the easing or elimination of the 10 per cent income surtax.

But he said as matters now stand, the surtax must continue. Kennedy said he personally sees little likelihood of substantial budget reductions. He said he thinks the spending blueprint Johnson prepared is "a very tight budget." It projects a $3.4 billion surplus.

"I think we'll have to work very hard to hold that surplus," the Treasury secretary said. "My own view is that it's going to be very difficult to reduce expenditures substantially."

Kennedy said budget control, the handling of the surtax question and monetary policy will be the administration's major tools in trying to contain inflation.

He said the goal is to "take the steam out of the boiler, the high pressure," without disrupting the economy in a manner which would lead to high unemployment.

"We are all conscious of the risks of abrupt and blunt action that could bring unnecessary unemployment," Kennedy said. "We mean to avoid that. But we are equally conscious of the risk of not moving decisively, because inflation is undermining both the foundation of our prosperity at home and our balance of payments position."

Kennedy welcomed indications of a balance in the nation's international payments.

4,000 shout at cardinal in England

LONDON (AP) — Wild scenes erupted in St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral Wednesday night when John Cardinal Heenan addressed a crowd of 4,000 at a service of prayer for Christian unity.

For nearly 10 minutes the scarlet-robed Roman Catholic stood in the great carved pulpit unable to speak while Protestant extremists waved Bibles aloft and shouted abuse.

Outside police had to form a ring around the Protestant extremist leader, the Rev. Ian Paisley of Northern Ireland, as counterdemonstrators pelted him and his supporters with eggs.

A chanting crowd of nearly 100 mobbed him, yelling "Seig heil" and "Paisley go home." They held their arms aloft in the Nazi salute.

Paisley, wiping the egg yolks from his collar, smiled and said: "The more of this the better. You see what kind of things papists do."

Big munitions dump seized along with deserted camp

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. air cavalrymen in a lightning swoop by helicopter have found an undefended enemy base north of Saigon and seized the second largest munitions dump captured in the war, the U.S. Command reported Wednesday.

The cavalrymen found 30 tons of rockets, mortars, recoilless rifle shells and explosives still in crates in 30 bunkers 60 miles northwest of Saigon Tuesday.

Noting the absence of guards at the base, a U.S. spokesman said either the enemy thought the bunker complex was safe from discovery or the guards fled when they saw they were outnumbered. The base is only seven miles from the Cambodian border.

The cache was found 26 miles from where South Vietnamese troops uncovered the war's biggest cache, 40 tons of weapons and supplies last September.

The stockpile found Tuesday included Red Chinese 107mm rockets, the first found so far that were not copies of Soviet designs. The Americans also found the bodies of six North Vietnamese soldiers in one bunker. They apparently were killed by a U.S. air strike.

U.S. officers believe that like other large arms caches taken in the 3rd Corps Tactical Zone, the stockpile was destined for use in an enemy offensive against Saigon.

In the far north, U.S. infantrymen backed by tanks drew renewed fire Wednesday as they battled an entrenched enemy force 65 miles south of the military base of Da Nang.

The California state college system is the nation's largest.

The administration of Humboldt State College called the strike "a dismal failure."

Some picketing but mostly normal classroom operations were reported at 13 of the 19 college campuses where the American Federation of Teachers had called for walkouts.

The AFL-CIO union claims 2,000 members of the 11,000 faculty roster. Some AFT campus units appeared to have revolted against the strike call and turned it down flat.

The strike was called in sympathy with the 20 striking AFT members at San Jose State College who had been declared "officially resigned" because of five consecutive unauthorized absences, in violation of state law.

The San Jose group has been on strike since Jan. 8 in sympathy with fellow union teachers who walked off the job two days early at San Francisco State College, scene of student strike turmoil for more than 2½ months.

Many of the campuses were busy with final exams for most of their 125,000 students.

LBJ misses old power

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) — Lyndon Johnson relaxed on his front lawn Wednesday and admitted to newsmen he is bound to miss power, "but I want to miss it in a good way."

Granting a request to give a post White House news conference, Johnson came out in a hunting jacket with matching pants and talked for nearly one and one-half hours. He asked photographers not to take pictures because he wore a sports shirt without a tie. Later he put on a tie.

At first Johnson's mood was subdued. He answered questions with short sentences whispering so low under the giant oaks that reporters four feet away could not hear him. He warmed up when the questions turned to his administration.

Lodge briefs allies

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge briefed some of the allies in South Vietnam Wednesday on what to look for in the Paris peace talks, expected to be long and difficult.

Aside from a working session with his own delegation, the newly appointed chief negotiator met with the ambassadors of Australia and South Korea.

The South Korean ambassador, So Young Lee said Lodge assured him that the United States would remain in close contact throughout the forthcoming negotiations with the allied nations whose troops are fighting in Vietnam.

They are South Korea, the Philippines, Thailand, Australia and New Zealand. They are now excluded from the Vietnam talks comprising the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front but may be brought into the negotiations at a later stage.

The thinking in Paris is that when talks begin Saturday on bedrock issues, progress will be inch by agonizing inch.

A hint of what is ahead came from Saigon, where Premier Tran Van Huong accused the other side of "stubbornness." Hanoi and the front have been accusing Saigon and the Americans of precisely the same thing.

All four principals held working sessions during the day and presumably were preparing opening statements for the first session. The statements are expected to run the whole gamut of policy and aims of all four principals.

Few here doubt that Hanoi and the front will state their toughest bargaining positions, based upon the four points of North Vietnam and five points of the front. These involve demands for a U.S. withdrawal, liquidation of all bases and permitting the front a decisive role in South Vietnam's future.

Challenger to Abel in rebuttal

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Emil Narick, who is challenging I. W. Abel for the presidency of the United Steelworkers, denied Wednesday that he is receiving campaign money from prominent Republicans.

"Absolutely nothing to it," Narick said. "This is politics, and my opposition is doing anything it can to discredit me."

Narick, a staff lawyer at union headquarters, said all his support came from the rank and file and his own personal savings. He said he would reveal the amounts in detail if Abel would do the same.

Narick made the statements in a telephone conversation from Houston where he was campaigning. He was asked about rumors that prominent Republicans were financing his race in reaction to Abel's strong support for Hubert H. Humphrey's candidacy for U.S. president. Humphrey carried Pennsylvania.

The Wall Street Journal reported Tuesday that Abel had said Narick received one contribution of $40,000 from top Republicans. Asked about that, some political sources said they had heard the rumor but didn't know whether it was true.

A spokesman for Abel, who was campaigning in St. Louis, said it was the first he had heard of the story.

"There all kinds of rumors going around," Narick said. "One story says the Republicans are supporting me, another that it is the Democrats. There's even a story that Abel will resign in April if he wins and take over George Meany's job."

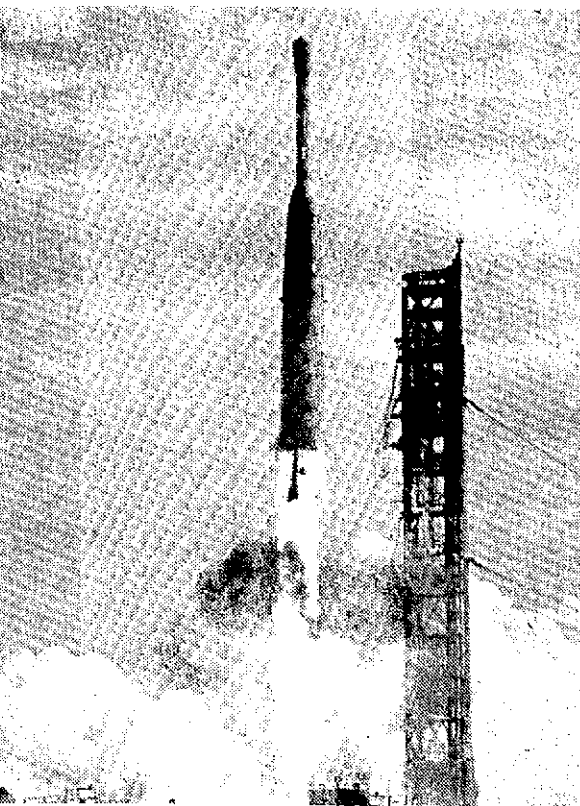

Meany is chief of the AFL-CIO. The steelworkers, with 1.2 million members, is the largest union in the AFL-CIO now that the autoworkers have left.

The story about Narick and the Democrats came first from a union source in Philadelphia.

State jobless at December low

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Bureau of Employment Security said Wednesday the number and the rate of total unemployment last month in the state were at their lowest levels on record for any December.

Jobless workers were estimated at 145,606, a decrease of 12,000 from November while the rate of unemployment declined from 3.2 per cent of the total civilian work force in November to 3 per cent in December, the bureau said.

Cong atrocities on captured film

CA MAU, Vietnam (AP) — Bullets thudded into the back of the South Vietnamese soldier as he sprawled face down on the ground.

His blood-flecked shirt rode up his back with the impact. He twitched spasmodically and died.

It was death, Viet Cong style, in the Mekong Delta. The executioner was a Viet Cong soldier in floppy hat and baggy tunic with an AK47 automatic rifle pressed hard to his shoulder.

The scene came from a roll of raw 16mm black and white movie film, straight from the camera and uncut, captured recently in the U Minh Forest, on the Gulf of Siam southwest of Saigon.

The film-laden camera was among enemy material seized when government troops overran the Viet Cong information center for delta operations last month.

Ship costs threaten Nixon vow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soaring shipbuilding costs are threatening the Nixon administration's ability to redeem a campaign pledge to "restore the goal of a Navy second to none."

The Johnson defense budget sent to Congress last week contained a number of ship projects, some considered urgent, which had been reshaped because of sharply rising prices.

The Nixon people could restore cuts in the shipbuilding and conversion program, but it would mean spending billions more than anticipated.

The budget pinpointed a spectacular $2-billion rise in the estimated cost of a major program to build advanced conventional and nuclear-powered escort vessels.

"Much of this increase," the Pentagon said, "is basically the result of two factors—a continuing rise in the price of labor and materials and more realistic estimates based on later contract information."

Better management could bring better cost calculation. But recent history shows no way for the new administration to avoid the penalties of inflation which have added some $16 billion to the price of U.S. military strength since 1961.

Besides this, all the armed services have projects they consider important and will be pressing them with the new secretary of defense, Melvin R. Laird.

As a result of the huge jump in the anticipated cost of the new destroyers and frigates, the Pentagon reduced its objective from 68 to 62 new ships of the advanced classes.

Work on a revolutionary quiet submarine will be pushed ahead even though its estimated cost has rocketed from $100 million to about $152 million, and may go as high as $200 million.

The Pentagon said it believes the turbine electric-drive submarine will be worth the cost because it will provide "unique and valuable operational and test experience with this new type of propulsion plant and other important quieting features considerably earlier than could otherwise be achieved."

ing the death of the Vietnamese soldier, who had apparently fled from his truck during a Viet Cong ambush, would obviously never have been included in any of the propaganda movies the enemy distributes around the world.

The sequence was part of about 300 feet of film showing the ambush of a government truck convoy in a village somewhere in the delta, probably last summer.

State laws for all: Shafer

HARRISBURG (AP) — Violations of the law, regardless of whether they occur on college campuses or off, will not be tolerated in Pennsylvania, Gov. Shafer warned Wednesday.

"I will use all the resources at my command to see that order is maintained and public property is protected, and that includes schools and colleges," the governor said at his news conference.

The statement was in response to a question concerning a student takeover last Wednesday of the computer center at the University of Pittsburgh.

Thirty black students occupied the center for some six hours before Dr. Wesley Posvar, university chancellor, agreed to their demands and promised that no punitive action would be taken.

"We cannot tolerate violations of the law," Shafer told newsmen. "We cannot tolerate violence. We cannot tolerate insurrection."

The governor said he was not averse to sending the State Police in to quell student uprisings if he felt the troops were necessary, or if their presence was requested by college officials.

Commenting on the threat of another teachers' strike in Pittsburgh, Shafer said the pupils were being used as "pawns" and urged the city's citizenry to "get together and resolve their problems."

The governor declined comment on public statements made by his budget secretary, Arthur F. Sampson, to the effect that a 1½ to 2 per cent statewide income tax was necessary for the state to meet its fiscal obligations.

Noting that his budget for the coming fiscal year would be made public next Tuesday.

Friends all 'big shots'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon said Tuesday invitations to White House social events won't be confined to "the big shots" but will encompass a broad range of friends and campaign allies who will be entertained on a rotating basis.

Mrs. Nixon made this announcement in greeting some 1,300 guests—campaign workers and their families—at a morning reception in the Executive Mansion.

President Nixon added a word, saying he wanted to keep the record straight.

"In my book, all of our friends are big shots."

'Sunshine' orbiter to study flares

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A complex "sunshine satellite" streaked into earth orbit Wednesday to study solar flares during a time of peak activity and to warn astronauts of hazardous radiation in space.

Packed with telescopes and other sensors to measure various forms of atomic radiation streaming from the sun's boiling surface, Orbiting Solar Observatory 5 darted away from Cape Kennedy at 11:48 a.m. EST to open the space agency's 1969 launch schedule.

OSO's Delta rocket drilled the 641-pound payload into an orbit about 350 miles above the earth.

"All is looking well with the OSO mission," reported a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Project officials plan to switch on the first of eight scientific experiments today.

"Eight days after launch we should have everybody turned on," said C. D. Ashworth, NASA program manager for solar observatories.

In orbit above the distorting influence of the atmosphere, the $12 million OSO5 will attempt to study solar X rays which can tell scientists temperatures at various points on the sun's surface. Other sensors are to measure atomic particles streaming from the sun which influence earth's weather and radio communications.

Four previous OSO satellites have been orbited since 1962.

Police ruled they could play late in the day when idling beachers have left or thinned out, leaving the sands to the hard rubber ball and paddle people.

Big knife linked to Ziepké murder

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD—The possible murder weapon used in the slaying of Robert Ziepké, 41, of Cambria Heights, N.Y., has been found in a building lot at Hemlock Farms, it was revealed to The Pocono Record.

The knife, with which Ziepké was apparently stabbed 22 times, was found in a lot not far from the victim's vacation home in the private second home development. It was uncovered during excavation for a new home.

A reliable source revealed that the knife had apparently been wrapped in Ziepké's shorts. When found, the shorts were near the knife.

The informed source revealed that the knife had two cutting edges which came to a point. One cutting edge was 10-inches long and the other 14-inches.

Ziepké was found dead in his vacation home at 2:30 a.m. December 28 by a friend, Leroy Lemstrom of Massapequa, L.I.

The man's body was lying in a pool of blood on the floor between the kitchen and the living room.

22 stab wounds

Ziepké, who was six-feet, two-inches tall and weighed approximately 200 pounds, had eight stab wounds in the back, three in the back of the neck, eight in the chest and three in front of the neck. There was also a large abrasion on the inner right thigh.

Another blood stained knife was found in the Ziepké home.

In addition to the knife recovered in the building lot, Ziepké's wallet was also found in a ditch off Route 6. The wallet, from which money was missing, was apparently taken from the victim's home.

It was also revealed to The Record that the keys to Ziepké's car have also been located. The victim's car was about six miles from his home in a ditch. The keys, it was revealed, were in a viaduct in Port Jervis.

Meanwhile, James Michael Olenick, 17, of 17 Reservoir Ave., Port Jervis, N.Y., the accused slayer of Ziepké, remains in the Orange County Jail without bail pending extradition proceedings.

The Port Jervis High School junior was arrested on a city street after school on January 4. He is being held on a fugitive from justice warrant issued in New York on the basis of a murder warrant issued in Pike County.

Since the arrest, the teenager's father, Nicholas Olenick, said that his son told him that Ziepké had invited his son to a party at the victim's vacation home.

Self defense

The father said Ziepké was killed in self-defense when a fight ensued between his son and the Long Island school teacher.

This week, Olenick's mother made a plea to Port Jervis Mayor Sidney Sakofsky to use his influence for development of a youth center.

Mrs. Olenick said a youth center is needed for the city's young people so that they do not become involved in incidents such as her son.

Mayor Sakofsky agreed with Mrs. Olenick and said that plans had already been made for a 3,000 square foot youth center in the city's proposed new City Hall.

The city hall is scheduled for construction under an urban renewal program. The mayor said the project should take two years to complete.

West End academies a lingering memory

(Editor's note: This is the first in a series of two articles on early education in the West End of Monroe County.)

By FRED WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

BRODHEADSVILLE — It does appear that children today are better taught than were their ancestors.

It is puzzling at times though, when we make the comparison and question why we have not produced a generation of statesmen and educators as distinguished as the founding fathers who were products of forgotten rural academies and embryo colleges.

The story is similar in many other areas of early efforts to bring the learning and teaching disciplines to the young people of rural America.

Consider the West End of Monroe County. There was a marked influence on the young people here when the religious foundations in the area brought to them the best available in the pedagogies of the time and prepare them for a more useful life.

In the late 19th and early 20th century, before a formal public school system became established, a preparatory-type of education was offered by these rural academies.

Moral education

For the people here, it not only meant an education, but a thorough involvement in living with training in morals and culture as well.

It was a time when educators had the notion that education itself was primarily moral and only secondarily intellectual. The primary business of these early schools was to train character.

Emphasis was on religious training and the early West End schools were usually started by ministers of either Lutheran or Reformed foundations. Much classwork was based on German scriptures and textbooks and at times given directly in the German language.

They followed a kind of middle-class, conventional, equalitarian morality, accepting rules of conduct to develop such essential virtues as industry, sobriety, thrift, propriety, modesty, punctuality and conformity; those who practiced them were sure of success. Failure was just as clearly the consequence of laziness or self-indulgence deserving little sympathy.

The first advanced ideas and dreams were made by a German Reformed clergyman in the Brodheadsville area, listed in a history of the county as a Rev. Schneider. He wanted to establish a German-English Normal school at Brodheadsville, which was to bear the name, Wickersham, after Dr. James Wickersham, state superintendent of schools at the time.

Wickersham School

Fantastic and ambitious plans were drawn for this Normal school by an Allentown architect, G. A. Aschbach Civ. Eng. & Archt., dated 1871. The complete plan included eight separate plates including the main structure, of four floors and two three-story wings.

Basic dimensions of the total structure were 243 feet in length on a front view, 43 feet wide at side view and 117 feet high to the top of the bell tower; 70 feet to the gable and 52 feet to the top of the side wings.

More than 100 rooms were included to house students in the third, fourth and fifth floors. The ground and second floor included classrooms, dining, gymnasium, auditorium, and other facilities for a complete education building.

The plan failed to materialize. According to fragmented information from histories and personal memories, there was an apparent disagreement on acquiring the property.

Few West End residents remember much about the Wickersham school. Mrs. Eva (Walt) Wetzel of Brodheadsville said it was to be built on the J. D. Weiss property in the middle of the village, just south of present Rt. 209 in a swamp area, just south of where the new A&P store is now located.

Miss Bertha Storm, a retired teacher who still lives in the century old family homestead on Rt. 115 between Brodheadsville and Effort found the linen parchment plans of Wickersham and has preserved them to this date. She also found a copy of one of the original $50 stock-share forms bearing the name of the school.

Fairview Academy

Dreams of a needed school did not remain dormant very long. Ten years later, another school was planned and built in spring and summer of 1881.

Planned by a Lutheran minister, the Rev. George G. Kunkle, Fairview Academy was to be active for 45 years and was finally demolished and replaced by a service station in 1938.

A Reformed minister, Rev. Frank W. Smith, inspired the movement for another preparatory school just a few years later, 1886, known as Polytechnic Institute at Gilbert.

It was active for 35 years and was forced to close in 1922 after state regulations required Normal School certificates for teaching in the newly established Public School system.

The Polytech buildings still stand in Gilbert, on the northside of Rt. 209 and after 82 years in existence, many former students return each year to recall their favored "Poly."

With the failure of Wickersham, and the closing of Polytech and Fairview, the sounds of an active college community in the West End were silenced.

(The second article, the Story of Fairview, will appear in Friday's paper in the form of a picture page. The memories of Polytechnic were recalled in an article published in The Pocono Record on September 26, 1968.)

Tax plan part of economy

Centralized collection of taxes, as proposed by Irving Sommer, president of the East Stroudsburg School Board has merit, although it faces a number of problems.

Its merit lies in the fact that it could result in major savings for most school districts and it emphasizes the point that schools must at least attempt to economize.

Operation of any school district in this modern day and age is big business and as in the case of most big businesses, the cost of operation is spiraling.

The various descriptions of the manner in which the centralized collection of taxes could save money have brought to the front the very need for economic measures on all fronts of school operation today.

Schools are expected to operate at the highest calibre of efficiency possible and at the lowest cost possible, in all fairness to taxpayers.

The manner in which tax collectors of the Pocono Mountain School District quickly agreed to the lower rate was most encouraging. The tax collectors said they accepted the lower figure in order to maintain local government.

There appears, at least on the surface, to be a feeling of cooperation between school directors, tax collectors and taxpayers on the subject, although it remains to be seen just how deeply the cooperation reaches.

It is quite possible that the entire reduction in tax collection fees will have to be the result of cooperation between the tax collectors and the school districts to keep the plan out of court and thus do away with costly delay.

All school projects must be the best we can make them, at the lowest cost possible.

Allen-Goldsmith Report

Deserter penalty

WASHINGTON — A special Senate panel is proposing that men who flee from United States military service to asylum abroad be subject, on return, to punishment as deserters.

That is the legislative recommendation of an Armed Services subcommittee which has been studying Pentagon policies with respect to deserters. Chairman of the subcommittee is Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, an Army veteran who lost an arm in World War II.

During the Vietnam war refugees from military service have taken up residence in nations of Europe as well as in Canada and Mexico. More than 150 have been granted asylum in Sweden alone.

The subcommittee's recommendation is that a serviceman who seeks asylum or a residence permit outside the United States be classified as a deserter and subject to penalties as such when and if he returns to the U.S.

In public and closed hearings, the subcommittee was advised that about half of the servicemen who take up a foreign residence do eventually return to the United States. Their penalties have varied.

In some cases such returned expatriates have claimed that their voluntary return to the United States shows they had not deserted, in any permanent sense, under present laws. Some courts have accepted that rationale.

The Inouye subcommittee's proposal, as drafted for final membership approval, would bar such a defense. A serviceman who applies for, or receives, asylum or a residence permit would be punishable as a deserter.

Uneven handed

Present Vietnam war penalties for desertion have been running to a couple of years imprisonment without pay, usually with a dishonorable discharge, but there has been a wide disparity in punishments. With the United States not technically at war, penalties under the law can be as severe as five years imprisonment without pay and a dishonorable discharge.

It was the uneven treatment of returned deserters which prompted Armed Services Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., to order the subcommittee's inquiry last spring. Draft evasion and refusal to serve in the armed services were not a part of the subcommittee's inquiry.

The subcommittee did broaden its scope, however, when it began taking testimony from the services about deserters and others in extended absent-without-leave categories. Service spokesmen finally disclosed that there was no coordinated reporting of such absences and no way for top commanders to know just how many fighting men might be AWOL on an extended basis.

Consequently the subcommittee has already told the Pentagon and the individual armed services to modernize their procedures in that regard.

With respect to deserters, the subcommittee, in addition to its legislative recommendation, urges a firm and even-handed punishment policy and criticizes a few cases in which returned expatriates were lightly disciplined, even after they had participated in anti-U.S. propaganda efforts.

Some individuals, and at least one group of clergymen, have been reported as urging a sort of general amnesty for servicemen who have sought asylum in Sweden. Many are reported anxious to return and willing to accept some form of punishment in order to do so.

The House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee plans to look into federal standards for protection against radiation soon after it is reorganized for the new Congress. Standards for uranium miners, recently promulgated by outgoing Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, will figure prominently in the inquiry.

For several years the congressional committee has been trying to spur the adoption of broad radiation protection standards. The committee wants an inter-agency group, the Federal Radiation Council to adopt federal standards to determine the maximum exposure which could be tolerated by individuals exposed to nuclear radiation.

The committee held extensive hearings on the radiation perils of uranium miners in 1967. It urged quick action by the Radiation Council, but members complained that Wirtz had acted prematurely in setting tight standards which were based on faulty analysis of limited data.

Wirtz agreed, at that time, to hold off action under his standards, pending action by the Radiation Council.

Despite proceedings from the congressional committee, however, the Radiation Council, headed by HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen, has been unable to resolve differences and approve a set of standards. A fruitless meeting was held at the end of November.

On Dec. 28 Wirtz published a set of radiation standards for uranium miners in the official federal register.

Now Rep. Carl Albert, D-Cal., who heads the House-Senate committee, says the group will hold hearings on the "very restrictive" Wirtz standards and "determine if the Federal Radiation Council has been thwarted from fulfilling its legally established function in this area."

Moved to tears

WASHINGTON — James Greenleaf Whittier wrote: "For all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, 'It might have been!'" And the only thing sadder than that were the statements of departing members of the Johnson Administration.

Ah, the things they would have done, if only they'd had time to do them. One wonders, of course, how much time they would have required. The Democrats have controlled Congress with only brief interruptions for most of the last 30 years. And they've had the White House for all but eight of the last 36 years.

Despite this, however, they apparently required only another few years, or perhaps just a few more months, to complete all the good and noble things they set out to do. Unfortunately, somewhere off in the distance, I hear a voice crying, "Horse-radi-sh!" (On investigation, I find that the voice is my own).

Case in point

Take the case of Wilbur J. Cohen, who, until last week, was Secretary of Health,

Cuban Communism

(First of two parts)

It was night and the heroics were over. The women of Havana had greeted the bearded messiah and had pelted him with flowers as he clanked through the streets in a tank. Fulgencio Batista, the despised dictator, had fled in a plane, leaving 16 suitcases of heavy silver because they were too much for the aircraft.

I felt uneasy. The editors had gambled that I might be right in calling this thing a Communist coup, but the editorial writers were referring to it as the "liberation" of Cuba. It was a comic opera revolution. A bearded man named Fidel Castro, who never had more than 700 armed men in his band; a man who showed no inclination to fight; had reposed in the hills around campfires.

He was a joke to most of the 7,000,000 people of Cuba. The only way in which he could get publicity for his movement was to kidnap American oil men and arrange for American magazines to publicize it. Without the publicity, Dr. Castro might still be sitting in the hills counting deserters.

The State Department of the United States withdrew its support of Fulgencio Batista at Christmastime. The moment the crutches were yanked, the dictator fell. He left his beautiful home, Ququine, with his family. The Ampex record player was still spinning "The Blue Danube Waltz" when I arrived.

Something wrong

Something was wrong, but I couldn't tell what it was. Batista left, but it required a week to coax the winner, Castro, to enter Havana. I waited at the new Hilton — owned by the Bakers Union — and I had a big suite of rooms on the 22nd floor. A similar suite was reserved for Castro on the 23rd.

One night I walked through Columbia Barracks and watched the young barbudos watching me. The most formidable weapon they had was a truck chassis with steel plating cut from a sugar refinery to make it look like a tank. They had no aircraft, no artillery, no strategy — just a handful of adventuresome boys who thought that, like Jose Marti, they were freeing their country.

At the top of the hill was a huge white statue of Jesus. It looked down on the inner harbor. I stood there talking to an Argentinian with a drooping silken beard. His name was Che Guevara. He had two girls and kept a tight arm around each one. "Communist?" I said. Senor Guevara laughed. "Not Communist," he

The Pennsylvania Story

Down to work!

HARRISBURG—Pennsylvania's lawmakers returning to Capitol Hill next week following their two-week recess find themselves faced with just one mandate: get down to work!

And for the most part legislative leaders have exactly this intent.

Next week will mark the first real week for members of the 1969 Legislature to actually unlimber their legislative muscles. (The only time they met previously was on January 7 for the convening session — and then back to the hustings).

Next week they'll have in their hands the Shafer Administration's two-billion-dollar-plus general fund budget for fiscal 1969-1970 which Pennsylvania taxpayers will be asked to underwrite.

During the past two weeks much of the cumbersome machinery for operating the new 1969 session has been assembled and set up. For example, the all-important committees — a prerequisite for any functioning of any note — have now been named.

To all intents and purposes the week of January 7 was the official convening week.

"Work session"

But to all intents and purposes it will be the fifth week in January that will mark the convening of the "work sessions" of Pennsylvania's legislative branch.

The issues Pennsylvanians will be hearing much about in the months ahead are fast beginning to define themselves.

Some of the Gov. Raymond P. Shafer Administration programs as enunciated by the governor in his opening remarks to the convening session January 7 are already marked for the drain, regarded by partisans for the most part as "too much flap; too much of an all-inclusive attempt to cover the (political) water front."

Those insisting on this view of course for the most part are anti-administration Democrats — and in this particular case, that is, this 1969 session, they are the ones who have the power

Advances in medicine

New horizons are opening for the treatment and control of schizophrenia, the severe mental illness which once kept thousands of people incarcerated in mental institutions. Before the recent understanding that chemical changes in the body and brain may be the cause of this condition, mental institutions, even the very best, were heartbreakingly inadequate. A sense of defeat pervaded these buildings and made patients, their family, doctors and personnel aware of the meaninglessness of treatment before the modern era of therapy. Now rays of hope are penetrating for everyone. Patients who have spent years confined to "safety" quarters of mental hospitals are now able to live safely and in harmony with their families.

Many drugs had been used with fair to good results. While these were being used, research continued and has now contributed a said, "Democratic. The people will decide their future."

I walked back to the hotel and saw that the casino on the mezzanine had been darkened and locked. In the morning, I took a taxi to the old part of town. In the doorway of the old Iglesia de Cerra stood Alfredo Monsignor Muller, auxiliary bishop of Havana. He would know. A hen crossed the threshold cocking its head with each stride.

Had he heard the rifle fire all morning? No. It was necessary to shoot the Batista officers, he said. He was a small thin man gray of skin and hair and he spoke pocolito English. It was necessary, sad, but necessary.

Was this a people's revolution? A true democracy? Of course, of course. Slowly, dwelling on each individual word, the bishop told me that he knew the Castro family; he knew Fidel and Raoul; he knew their parents and had spent time at the Castro finca.

"The revolution is not Communist. You comprehend?" I said I did. "The people of this country are Roman Catholic," he said. "They are not prepared — it is not in their character — to be Communists."

Definitely Communist

I thanked him and filed a dispatch stating that the Castro movement was definitely Communist. This ended my usefulness. Castro announced that he wanted no public office; the people would be permitted to vote by secret ballot within six months. The United States government believed him and endorsed him. Top-flight journalists — DuBois of the Chicago Tribune, and Matthews of the New York Times — made Castro appear to be a savior.

There is a chilly loneliness in turning away from the herd. DuBois met me at an elevator. Dr. Castro would see me at 11 p.m. on Sunday, he said. The sun was bright on Havana. The flamboyants made a lacy shade in the fields.

I could hear the rifle fire of the execution squads only when I was downwind. The new government was now picking the candidates for sudden death from buses and out of parked automobiles.

This week, 10 years later, I received a note from the Czechoslovakian embassy. The Castro government, sorry to say, had declined to admit me to Cuba to write a report on the revolution. I had to admit that this was one of the rare occasions when Castro displayed good judgment.

Marian McPartland has a fine new album out, "My Old Flame," but she's sore because Dot Records used a young chick on the front: "They at least could have taken a photo of mine and air-brushed some glamor into it." "The Boys in the Band," already a very torrid ticket, is hotter — the N.Y. cast will shift to London next month and another new troupe will swish into the homo-comedy here... Stork Club's Sherman Billingsley died broke... For years patrons at The Stork wondered if it were true that Billingsley had the whole Stork Club "bugged," and generally disbelieved it; we can positively vouch that it was — we eavesdropped several times on some interesting conversations... It was a big, gray steel contraption with dozens of little switches that let Sherman tune in on his kitchen, checkroom, lobby, etc., but it also was connected to microphones secreted at Table 50 (the best table in the place) and several others... Once a whole table of his "friends" gave Sherman an ensemble rap for 10 minutes until suddenly Sherman appeared at their table, his face like a treeful of owls... He thereafter treated the entire gang except one fellow with disdain, gave them bad tables and plenty of the back of his neck... The exception was a lad who had remained silent while the circle squared off on Sherman until finally he was asked his opinion of the famous Billingsley: "All I know is that he picks up one helluva tab," marveled this Instant Diplomat, and Sherman forever admired his reticence and candor... Kids in discos have lots of fun but they're too busy perspiring to care where they are seated, for they are seldom seated; and television diverts the folks who attended the midnight ceremonies at the Stork and Perona's just to get out of the house... Johnny Carson's a sad substitute but what the hay... So only Jules Podell remains solvent and secure of all the rare oldtimers.

Love mother, be patient

By JEAN ADAMS

NUMBER 1: (Q) My mother all the time downgrades me. She tells me I'm hateful just because I disagree with her point of view. She tells me how wonderful I have it. She's talking about material things. I think love is more important than money or clothes. I hope I can provide all three for my children without constantly reminding them of what I'm doing for them. Perhaps if adults would listen we wouldn't have such a big generation gap. A 15-Year-Old Girl in Baltimore

(A) If you can give your children all the love and all the material things they need, and never remind them that you're doing it, you will be a very special mother and your children will be lucky indeed. We live in a time when new ideas come rushing at us and old ideas hang on tight as ticks. Because of this, many of us have trouble deciding what is most important. You have decided correctly about love. It's No. 1. Keep this always in mind and try to be patient with your mother. She loves you and wants the best of everything for you. If you can avoid arguing with her it will be easier for both of you to bring your love out in the open where it belongs.

(A) "Sun-streaking" that looks natural and summery is hard to get out of a bottle or tube. I am sending you the name of a shampoo that should lighten up all your hair without dulling its sheen.

The Christmas Eve moon light had a very personal application for one local woman. Marian Stofflet, just back from spending the holidays with her daughter, Joan and her family in Oklahoma, was particularly interested in one astronaut, John Anders.

In the first place, Anders is not a common name but Tex Anders was the name of the best man at Marion and Jere's wedding in Norfolk forty years ago. In the second place, John looked just like Tex did then.

"I suppose I'm just imagining that," said Marion, laughing at herself. But she wasn't, she discovered later when she learned that John Anders father had also received the DSC thirty years before.

Jere Stofflet and Tex Anders were classmates at Annapolis and later they both served on the Utah, now at the bottom of Pearl Harbor. Tex Anders stayed in the service and was commanding officer on a gunboat shot up in the Pacific. Wounded in the arm and the throat so that he couldn't speak, he stayed on deck writing his orders until the boat reached safety.

Anyway, it was a great thrill having your best man's son skittering around the moon — and coming safely back in triumph. As with hearing about the inauguration from Dottie Clark and Mary Jane Snyder, personal reactions make everything seem more vivid, somehow.

The most polished and vivid reporting by a stranger never has the same impact as the same report by somebody you know or somebody somebody you know knows.

Program on wild life held by local Woman's Club

STROUDSBURG — The Woman's Club of the Stroudsburg turned to wild life for their January meeting held at the Stroud Community Club.

Mrs. Esther Motts, foreman of Big Pocono State Park, gave a talk on her own experiences with native wild animals and birds. During her years as fire watcher on Big Pocono tower, she learned taxidermy, and had on display some of her large collection of native wild life.

Mrs. Claude Leister showed films of the animals at the Wild Animal Farm, assisted by Robert Coolbaugh, and of experiences with the individual and group visitors to the Farm on 611 which she owns and operates.

They were introduced by Mrs. E. C. Julestedt. Invocation was given by Mrs. Walter Caulfield and the pledge of allegiance was led by Mrs. George Robinson.

It was announced that 133 pairs of mittens had been given to children at the Well Baby Clinic at Christmas. Volunteers are needed for the Wednesday clinic.

It was announced that the music group of the club were joining the Music Study Club for a trip to the opera in March and that the art program had been postponed until April.

The club purchased a large toaster for Laurel Manor, which is the club's project. The Spring card party will be held in April.

The meeting was preceded by a dessert with Mrs. Walter Caulfield and Mrs. Foster Minnich presiding at the tea table.

Aid return of women to Academie

STROUDSBURG — To enable qualified women to return to full-time academic work at the college level, the Pennsylvania Division of the American Assn. of University Women is urging its 60 branches throughout the state to give high priority for meeting the goal of $10,000 for the 1969-70 college faculty program.

The program is designed to enable qualified women to prepare for administrative, research or teaching positions at the college level. It is administered in cooperation with the Educational Foundation of the association.

The division is also seeking women 30 years of age or over wishing to apply for the stipends which range from $600 to $2,000 depending on financial need. A bachelor's degree is a prerequisite.

Information and applications which must be completed by Feb. 15 may be obtained from Mrs. Harold A. Dunkelberger, Pennsylvania College Faculty program chairman, 26 East Lincoln Drive, Gettysburg.

Business, industry and foundations have been contributed to the program which will help meet the staff needs for colleges in the state brought about by increased enrollments and the establishment of community colleges.

During the past three years, five Pennsylvania women have completed requirements for the master's degree.

Grants for 1968-69 are held by Mrs. Margaret Ann Carney of Pittsburgh, who is studying child development and child care at the University of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Siegfried Rebane, Havertown, elementary education at West Chester State College; and Mrs. Geraldine Fletcher, State College, studying fine arts at Pennsylvania State University.

GOP Council inaugurates new year

STROUDSBURG — A Giant red, white and blue cake with the inscription, "Successful 1968" formed the centerpiece and theme of the Monroe County Council of Republican Women's Council installed their new officers in their own inauguration ceremony at the Motel Inn Towne.

Red, white and blue candies burned as the following officers were installed by Mrs. Joseph Shukaitis:

Mrs. Paul Russell, president; Mrs. Edgar Powell, first vice president; Mrs. Carl Hamill, second vice president; Mrs. Vernon Eilenberger, treasurer; Mrs. John Gebbie, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Andrew Dippie, recording secretary and Mrs. John Kuller, assistant.

As past president, Mrs. John Kuller, was presented with a state council recognition award and a silver pitcher.

A tribute was paid to Mrs. Clifford Heller of Stroudsburg, who will move to Bamberg, S.C., in the new future. Mrs. Heller has been an officer of the council for several years.

Guest speaker was Henry McCool, Monroe County probation officer, who spoke on the responsibilities and aims of the department.

Hostesses were Mrs. Andrew Dippie and Mrs. Joseph Shukaitis.

Inauguration festivities viewed through local women's eyes

STROUDSBURG — "It was worth it" agreed two women from Stroudsburg who attended the Inauguration activities in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Robert Clark of Broad Street and Mrs. Numa Snyder of Thomas Street accompanied their husbands for the weekend of pomp and ceremony, state breakfasts and late balls, traffic jams and hippies.

The Inaugural Ball in the Shoreham, one of five in the Capitol on Monday night, wasn't as jam-packed as it looked on television.

"Everybody crowded as close to the Presidential box as possible but after the Presidential party made its appearance and left it was possible to dance," Dottie Clark reported. "The problem was to find a place to sit."

"We weren't able to dance as much as we'd have liked," Mary Jane Snyder said. "We finally figured that the people just standing still on the dance floor were maneuvering for position long before the President made his appearance."

While they could see the President and his family, the Snyders could see only their heads and faces, not much of the gowns of the Presidential party. The Clarks, further back but perched higher, had a better view.

However, both women enjoyed seeing the gowns worn by fellow guests. There were very few mini-gowns, they reported, perhaps two or three and those worn by very young people. There were more evening dresses with evening pants.

However, most of the guests wore long evening gowns, some very revealing, some tailored and covered up. The material ranged from brocade to wool, from chiffons to feathers.

Old DVRR runs again

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Bushkill Flyer ran again for the more than 120 members and friends of the Monroe County Historical Society who attended the annual dinner meeting at the East Stroudsburg State College dining room.

The Delaware Valley Railroad which ran from Stroudsburg to Bushkill in the early years of this century was re-incarnated by Oliver Wilson as narrator and Elwood Grant with slides.

The re-incarnation was easier because of authentic displays. In one corner, William Laise and the Delaware Water Gap Model Engineers had erected a working scale replica of the DV. On another table were regalia of the railroad years: a mail hook, several lanterns and spikes including one of gold, oil cans and other items.

Jesse Fiory and the East Stroudsburg National Bank loaned their picture of the long-gone Bushkill Station at the end of the line, which advertised the advantages of the restful wonders of the Delaware Valley.

On the speaker's table, Mrs. Elwood Grant had arranged a centerpiece of signal post topiary trees, red bandannas and an engineer's cap.

The audience put itself in the proper mood by singing "I've Been Working on the Railroad."

Through slides and commentary the often troubled story of the railroad unfolded.

Many of the facts were gathered from local newspapers of the 1890's which detailed the construction problems, financial problems and other woes which beset the business men who had determined to bring the city to Pike County.

The great day was June 18, 1902, when the first train arrived in Bushkill.

After its opening, the Lackawanna Railroad contributed material for historians in their brochures filled with lyric prose of the glories of a mountain vacation made possible because the two lines connected at East Stroudsburg.

At the height of its activities from 1903 to 1909, the DV carried 17,000 persons annually, but by 1939, its fortunes had declined to the point where it was abandoned.

Wilson and Grant closed their presentation with a survey of the audience, uncovering the fact that more than one third of them had taken the train to Bushkill.

Among the guests at the meeting was the president of the Railroaders of America who was introduced by Horace G. Walters, president. Walters also introduced new members and reported on the progress of restoration of the Bell School. He invited members and friends to visit the Historical Museum which is open each Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m.

Nixon to use Key Biscayne, Fla. as 'Little White House'

EDITOR'S NOTE — When Dwight D. Eisenhower was president, his farm in Gettysburg, Pa., served as a kind of second White House. When John F. Kennedy wanted to get away, he joined his family at the Hyannisport complex. President Lyndon B. Johnson spent many a weekend at his Texas ranch. And Richard M. Nixon will use Key Biscayne, Fla., as his haven.

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. (AP) — This is a tight little subtropical isle where for many years people could come and "get away from it all" just 15 minutes by car from the neo-embazoned heart of Miami. But now, suddenly, the quiet life is gone—for four years at least. Because one of the men who discovered this easygoing haven from the rat race was Richard M. Nixon. Since 1951, when he first came here to unwind from the tensions of a tough U.S. Senate race in California, the island has been his favorite hideaway. And on Jan. 20, when he takes the oath of office as the 37th president of the United States, this idyllic retreat where he sought seclusion so often in the stormy course of an up-and-down political career will become the official "Little White House" of the nation. The residents of Key Biscayne, a 2,300-acre paradise nestled among thousands of towering coconut palm trees waving in the trade winds, are bursting with pride because Dick Nixon is their neighbor. But they know that the languid life they loved must be sacrificed.

Hordes of sightseers undoubtedly will swarm across the Rickenbacker Causeway from Miami, trying to see the Nixon home or to get a glimpse of him and his family. Already, there have been complaints about traffic snarls on Crandon Boulevard, the island's main road, which narrows from four to two lanes as it approaches the area of the Nixon home. "Minutes after Nixon was declared president-elect after a hot race with Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, he was on a plane bound for Key Biscayne. Since then, he has been busily preparing the site of the "Little White House." He has purchased the home of a wealthy Cuban exile, Manuel Arca Jr., a rambling, pale-blue structure valued at $127,000 which sits 200 feet from the shore of Biscayne Bay. Next door is the home of retiring U.S. Sen. George Smathers, which Nixon has used before and also plans to buy. Just beyond the Smathers home is that of C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a banker who took Nixon on fishing on his first trip to the island and since has become his confidant and friend. A 10-foot-high hedge of hibiscus bushes has been planted as a barrier against sightseers around a compound encompassing the three houses. As vice president in the Eisenhower administration, Nixon was a familiar figure on the island. He came here in 1960, to heal the wounds of his defeat by President John F. Kennedy, and it was here that Kennedy sought him out for a dramatic postelection meeting.

Here, also, Nixon took refuge when another bitter defeat, in a race for governor of his native California, appeared to have sounded the swan song of his political career. It was here, too, that he mapped out the campaign that carried him to the presidency. Legend says Ponce de Leon came ashore in 1513 and named the island Santa Maria. It was a hideout for Black Caesar and other buccaneers preying on the treasure ships of the Spanish Main. A red brick lighthouse still standing on Cape Florida at the south end of the island was erected in 1825 to foil wreckers who lured ships onto the offshore reefs and stripped them bare. In 1902, William J. Matheson, New York capitalist and yachtsman, "discovered" the island, bought a large tract of land, cleared a yacht basin and planted Malayan coconut trees by the thousands. Then the Florida land developers, Frank, Elliott and Robert Mackie, built the Key Biscayne Hotel and villas where Nixon stayed on his first visit.

Duke sells antiques in Abbey to pay off $12 million tab

EDITOR'S NOTE — When the Duke of Bedford inherited Woburn Abbey, he took the debts along with it. When he installed a "fun fair" on the lawns in an effort to make the Abbey pay its way, he started a row with his neighbors. But there's no row—so far—about "Duke's Row," a street of antique stores built on the Abbey grounds.

WOBURN, England (AP) — The furs and tweed jackets of Britain's smart antiques set hang these days on hooks in the Duke of Bedford's stables.

Hundreds of collectors prowl the stone corridors and grooms' rooms to peer and poke at antiquities dealers have brought from all over England. There are 36-cent bits of old glass, 18th century Dutch landscapes at $3,000 and thousands of items priced in-between.

And there is the duke, whose own collection—not for sale—includes $12 million in art treasures. He and the duchess drop in several times a week to shake hands with customers and buy an occasional piece themselves.

For John Robert Russell, 51, the 13th Duke of Bedford, the antiques market blossoming in a corner of the vast and drafty 200-year-old stable block marks another victory in the campaign to balance the books at his ancestral home. Russell inherited Woburn Abbey, site of a 12th century monastery, 13 years ago after the death of his father. With it came a $12 million bill from the government for death duties.

Determined to make the abbey pay its way, the duke opened the buildings to the public and installed a children's zoo, a pub and a fun fair on the lawns where Queen Victoria once strolled. He paid off the last inheritance taxes three years ago but Woburnites complained about the strangers crowding their village 45 miles north of London for the hippie and nudist gatherings the duke organized.

"Woburn Abbey had a Coney Island reputation," one villager said. "People thought it should be more respectable and attract persons of taste."

The chance to restore a measure of ducal dignity to Woburn Abbey came when the duke decided to sell some of its surplus furniture. Nicole Milinaire, the duke's French-born third wife, proposed a permanent market that could cash in on the boom in British antiques.

A decorator boarded over the stables' hitching posts and feeding troughs—the duke had long since sold the last of his horses—and began building indoor brick paved streets of Tudor, Georgian and Victorian-style shop fronts. Some of the show windows were saved from the wrecker's ball in older parts of London.

The duchess invited dealers to move in at rents up to $19.20 a week and Slaty Antiques Ltd. opened with seven one-room shops in June 1967. It soon closed for four months when Woburn Abbey was isolated to protect the duke's 3,000 deer during a foot-and-mouth outbreak.

Since reopening last March, "Duke's Row" has grown to 43 dealers, with 10 more shops due in early 1969 and 20 dealers on a waiting list. Restaurateur Didier Milinaire, the duchess's son and a director of Slaty Antiques, estimates the value of the antiques on view at nearly $240,000.

Some London experts rate the stable of stores equal in quality and variety to any other British antiques center outside the capital. Dealers travel as far as 150 miles to sell Japanese bronze birds at $1,320 and 17th century lacquer cabinets at $1,920.

Business is good. One dealer said he takes in several thousand pounds in a good week and, with Slaty Antiques staff on hand to arrange most sales, he doesn't have to haggle with customers.

A dealers' committee screens new exhibitors and checks the authenticity of major pieces on sale. Items dating up to 1890 occupy the ground floor; serious buyers climb the stairs to rooms where nothing later than 1890 is allowed.

"We charge two shillings (24 cents) admission just to keep out the kids who drop ice cream on the carpets," said H. Ashley Podd, a dealer from nearby Dunstable.

Auto owners warned on inspections

HARRISBURG — "It's later than you think!"

Warner M. Depuy, Secretary of Revenue, warned as a reminder to passenger car, station wagon and motorcycle owners that the current semi-annual inspection period is rapidly drawing to a close.

Depuy announced that there would be no extension in the midnight, Jan. 31 deadline after which time it will be illegal to operate any vehicle subject to inspection in the current campaign without a sticker of approval.

Harry H. Brainerd, Commissioner of Traffic Safety, urged owners of vehicles in the above categories who have not already done so to have the inspection made without further delay.

"A sudden, heavy snowstorm or harsh cold snap can swamp official inspection stations with calls for emergency service," Brainerd pointed out.

"Therefore, should you wait until the final days in the current inspection period," he said, "weather conditions could develop that would handicap official inspection stations with emergency work that might make it impossible to meet all requests for last-minute inspections in time to meet the deadline."

Depuy and Brainerd also announced that Pennsylvania's 40 year old inspection system will soon undergo a change.

Starting with the commercial vehicle inspection campaign getting underway Feb. 1, a new procedure for staggered inspection of motor vehicles will be initiated.

Ann Landers

Life hell for child

Dear Ann Landers: I think maybe I can help that lady who gave up her baby for adoption and signed herself "Bitter." She said she cried every night for 10 years because the social worker and her minister advised her to give her child up. Now she says it was the biggest mistake of her life.

I am a child who was kept by an unmarried mother and am therefore in a position to know what it's like from the child's point of view. My life was hell. When I was six years old I knew what "bastard" meant. I was left out of things and told to "go home." I was blackballed from a club when I was 15 because they couldn't have a member whose mother was a "Miss."

My mother kept saying, "Those people are ignorant. Don't pay any attention to them." And of course she was right, but an adolescent feels more than he reasons, and I suffered in ways that no child should have to suffer. The emotional damage of being raised by an unmarried mother was enormous. I know she meant well, but I would not do to a child what she did to me. My mother's "love" was, as you put it so well, "selfishness turned inside out."

Don't ever change your stand, Ann. You are right.

OTHER SIDE

Dear Side: Thanks for the assist. I intend to stay with this point of view, in spite of the criticism of those who think I am heartless and unfeeling.

Dear Ann Landers: I just finished reading the letter signed "Color Us Nauseated." She was complaining about a couple of lovebirds at the office who were forever pawing and making eyes at each other. When one went to the water cooler, the other followed. They held hands by the pencil sharpener and smooched behind the file cabinet.

She shouldn't complain, Ann. At least those lovebirds are a girl and a fella. There are two guys in our office who like each other and it's more than we can stand. I hope you will print this letter so the gal who wrote will see it. Some people don't know when they are well off. If she'll send us her couple, we'll send her ours.

CHICAGO

Dear Chicago: To each his own. Or her own. Or its own. Or — oh well — thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: All of us have seen ourselves in your column at one time or another. Please say something about people who are dieting. Maybe they will recognize themselves and stop boring all their friends with what they are eating, what they are starving to death.

In the past two days I have had my ear talked off by five friends who insist on filling me in on all the tiresome details — pounds lost, inches off — and even the menus. I couldn't care less. Print my letter, Ann. It will be your good deed for the day.

FED UP ON THE UNDERFED

Dear Fed: Thanks for putting my words in your mouth. Bless you.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife's brother moved in with us when his mother passed away. (They used to share an apartment.) The freeloading bum is 41 years old and the agreement was that he would stay with us until he found a roommate. My wife promised me the limit would be three months. This week it will be 19 months that the loafer has parked his feet under our table. I am sick of looking at him. He borrows my ties, uses my razor blades, monopolizes the television and bags the telephone.

We have been married five years and have no children. My wife says we can't afford a baby. (But we can afford to feed this fat clown.)

I am slowly falling out of love with my wife and am thinking seriously of a separation. Do you feel I am justified? A yes or no will do.

BELLY FULL

Dear B.F.: Yes. But first I'd try throwing the bum out.

Hiding handicap

By RITA JAMES

Dear Rita: Will you please tell me why hard of hearing people have such a stubborn reluctance to acknowledge their condition? They don't care if they are considered nuts, liars or just plain fools. They will go to any length rather than admit they have faulty hearing. I think it is ridiculous since everyone knows what their difficulty is.

DISGUSTED

Dear Disgusted: The average hard of hearing person feels quite secure in the fact that he has what he believes is an invisible handicap, but it is far from "invisible." No one is fooled by their irrelevant answers to the questions put to them. A hearing loss does have strange psychological effects. However, there are some who have endeavored to do something about it. Let us hope that the others will wake up to the fact that they are only fooling themselves.

Dear Rita: If a hearing aid has been prescribed for a boy of eight, do you think it will give him a feeling of being different, especially in the classroom? Will it embarrass him? I am worried.

MRS. GEORGE W.

Dear Mrs. W: A child will develop a feeling of being different and embarrassed if he cannot take an active part in either the work in the classroom or in playing with his hearing friends. Most children take readily to a hearing aid. It soon becomes a part of them, sort of standard equipment. If your son can wear a hearing aid, be thankful, as I am sure he will be when he gets the "feel" of it.

Dear Rita: Please tell me what an audiologist is — also what is the difference between an audiologist and an otologist?

MARTHA

Dear Martha: An audiologist is a person specially trained in the testing, educational and rehabilitative requirements of individuals with hearing impairments. An otologist is a medical doctor who specializes in diseases of the ear, nose and throat.

Dear Rita: I am constantly being bugged by my darling wife who is forever nagging me to stop asking her to repeat everything she says. She also howls to the high heavens when I turn the television up where I can hear it — she says we will be asked to move. If she would stop mumbling, and the television manufacturers would make their instruments stronger, my married life would be perfect. As it is, it sure is a mess.

TIRED OF BEING BUGGED

Dear Tired: It is possible that you have developed a hearing loss. You should talk with your family doctor, ask him to recommend an otologist (ear specialist). People who complain of others mumbling and find it necessary to have the television turned too high, frequently have a hearing impairment. Find out if this is your problem — help yourself to a perfect married life.

Thant offers plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant has suggested that the United Nations observe its 25th anniversary year with a declaration of historic importance outlining past achievements, current problems and future prospects. He offered his plan to a committee preparing for the 1970 celebrations. He also has suggested a meeting of all heads of state at U.N. headquarters next year.

ESSC trustees discuss all-college retirement policy

EAST STROUDSBURG — Automatic retirement at 65? Annual renewal of a college professor's fitness with final approval from the board of trustees after the professor reaches 65? Should there be a different retirement policy for department heads? These and other questions pertaining to a firm retirement policy were discussed Wednesday by the East Stroudsburg State College

Board of Trustees. The board took no final action but recommended that ESSC President Dr. Frank S. Sills obtain a consensus from the faculty and administration as to their views on arriving at a firm retirement policy. Dr. Sills requested a committee of two, Donald Reese and John Shinn, to obtain an overall opinion on a retirement policy from ESSC faculty members. Dr. Sills revealed there are 12 personnel over 65 out of a professional teaching staff of 105. Distinguishing an administrative staff member from a professor, Dr. Sills said that in his opinion he would relieve any administrator when he reached the age of 65. In his opening remarks on a retirement policy, Dr. Sills said that when a professional staff member reaches 65, every year after 65, the staff member's overall ability should be renewed annually by his department head. Dr. Sills said that a staff member's job is, in effect, terminated when he reaches 65. If he wants to stay on, Dr. Sills added, he should make his request to his department head, and then the department head would in turn notify the board whether the man in question qualifies for another year of service. In some cases an individual cannot be replaced, Dr. Sills said in pointing out the difficulty of bringing in younger replacements with equal skills. "There's no terminal point in our (retirement) system," Dr. Sills said. The present board policy is that after 65 a staff member needs approval from the board to continue teaching. "Other people say 65 and that's it," Dr. Sills said. Discussing retirement of a member of the administrative staff, Reese believed that the retirement age should be 65.

Another board member, Stroudsburg Attorney Maxwell Cohen, took exception to a mandatory retirement policy at 65 when he told the board of a California law school's difficult plight in maintaining a noteworthy staff. "The school took leading cast-off professors over 65 and they developed a fantastic staff," Cohen said. "At 65, men of such pre-eminence are not disassociated from the campus."

He said Princeton University set up an entire campus for staff members over 65. Cohen added that a general retirement rule should be "flexible as to age" but restricted in judging the mental awareness of the individual. Board member David Stoddard, Banger, noted that in some cases a 65-year-old man is more astute than one of 55. And he added, "Once you pass 75, you start to slow down."

Board member Ralph Chase, Old Forge, believed in setting the retirement age not to exceed 70. Another board member, Dr. James Fahl, East Stroudsburg, agreed with Dr. Sills that a department head should be retired at 65. Dr. Fahl feared that if retirement wasn't set at 65, it might lead to a possible situation in which a department head continuing in his position after 65 would tend to become the "clubby type."

Disputed building stopped

STROUDSBURG — A Stroudsburg law firm has voluntarily stopped construction of a new building pending the outcome of an appeal filed Monday against a zoning variance.

Bensinger and Bensinger has halted work on a building at the rear of 10 N. Seventh St., Stroudsburg.

The Stroudsburg Zoning Board of Adjustment which issued a variance to the borough's zoning code which permitted construction on the building to begin has set a public hearing on the appeal Feb. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the municipal building.

Atty. J. Joseph McCluckey filed the appeal and also is seeking a court injunction against the construction in behalf of John Valence, who owns 18 N. Seventh St., Inc., and occupies a building only inches away from the construction.

Valence claims that the board of adjustment issued the variance without holding a public hearing as stipulated in the zoning code.

Wednesday, the board requested that construction be halted until the appeal is settled, but the Bensingers voluntarily halted construction Tuesday night.

Serving on the board of adjustment are Walter Peeney Jr., Sumner Bossler Jr., and David Warrick.

Merchants to support name game

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn. Wednesday night unanimously endorsed a plan to participate in a contest to name the East Stroudsburg Borough Playground.

East Stroudsburg Mayor Thomas Kistler presented the proposal to the businessmen who met in Albino's Restaurant.

A three-man committee was appointed to work with Mayor Kistler on a contest arrangement. They are Don Heller, Herman A. Smeltz and Max Fleischmann.

Mayor Kistler said the East Stroudsburg Recreation Board and Garden Club originally suggested that the playground be given a formal name.

Mayor Kistler made a preliminary suggestion for the contest. He said that suggestion boxes could be placed in the business establishments and that customers could suggest a name.

Final arrangements, however, have yet to be made. Mayor Kistler said that three names have already been suggested. They are Dansbury Village Park, Old Dansbury Park and Broadhead Park.

In other action, businessmen told Mayor Kistler that improved communications is needed between the association and the borough's planning commission.

The association members said they have not been informed regarding the municipality's redevelopment program for the business district.

Extradition move starts

MILFORD — Pike County District Attorney William Gumble Wednesday night said he would start extradition charges to return Michael Olenick, 17, of Port Jervis, N.Y., who is charged with the murder of Robert A. Ziepe in his Hemlock Farms.

Olenick was arrested by State Police in New York and committed to Orange County Jail, Middletown, N.Y.

He is charged with the knife slaying of the New York City School teacher.

County conservation district asked to decide on land use

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Soil and Water Conservation District and its cooperating agencies were asked Wednesday night to compile testimony for the district related to preservation of agricultural land and present it to a special hearing in Scranton next Thursday.

The hearing is one of 12 being scheduled in the state for the Governor's Committee on Preservation of Agricultural Land.

Joseph Macialek, Area Resource Development Agent of Pennsylvania State University Cooperative Extension Service, told members of the district why the hearing is being held and to make use of it to "sound-out" with local problems.

One of the main objectives of the hearing will be to try to eliminate competition between agricultural land and commercial land development.

The hearing will not be limited to the single question of "preservation" but what will be emphasized preservation of the "better" land to be retained for farming. Many related factors in land use can be presented, Macialek said.

Macialek cited reasons for and against the question and many related problems.

In argument against preservation, he said "we do have increased production; we have some population controls; we can change our diet; there is land in reserve now and even

"We can favor preservation if we want to continue having a great quantity of food at the lowest cost now available in the United States; many jobs are related and depend on it and for conservation's sake we need open spaces to take up surplus water, prevent floods and to maintain an economic balance," Macialek said.

Officers elected for 1969 are: Elmer Kregler, chairman; Arlington (Bud) Martin, vice-chairman; Ray Alliger, secretary-treasurer; Ralph Shupp, executive council representative and Dorothy Roth, publicity representative.

Harold D. Larson Jr., assistant health officer, told George Forster Sr., Health Board chairman and other members, that 215 certificates were issued to food handlers and 42 food establishments were checked while 153 other inspections were made.

Larson also reported that five inspections were made at school cafeterias and three swimming pools. Others cases covered were one call for rodents and insects; 26 animal bites; 83 dead animals; 25 other complaints; two communicable disease cases (both infectious hepatitis); one dairy inspected; 70 weed complaints answered; four bake sale permits issued; 251 housing units inspected and four houses razed because they were unfit for human habitation.

Other officers reelected are: Robert Clark, first vice president; Edward Hofner, second vice president; William Moran, treasurer; Rose Schoch was elected recording secretary.

Directors approved the $72,361 budget for 1969.

Moran told directors that the 1969 plans are to eliminate a $12,000 loan incurred in 1966. The loan had accumulated due to unforeseen items and repairs.

Francis Drake, finance chairman, explained the need for action now to provide for present and future Y needs.

Tom Breslauer, chairman of the membership committee, said February is enrollment month and urged full participation in the YMCA enrollment.

Land acquisition in making

ESSC campus plan proposed

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Board of Trustees Wednesday discussed the status of off-campus housing, the new campus plan, holding student funds at the local level and a proposed 10-week summer session for educationally and financially deprived students.

Dr. Sills reported a large tract of land in East Stroudsburg is in the process of being purchased by Luxemburg and Krause, a construction and development firm from New Castle, Pa.

Luxemburg and Krause are expected to construct a student residence hall and complete it by Sept. 1, 1969.

Dr. Sills said he has been talking to East Stroudsburg's assistant borough manager Donald Gage and Leon Zacher, chairman of the borough's planning commission, to determine any difficulties in respect to zoning laws regarding construction of the residence hall.

Dr. Sills pointed out that some action should be taken to accelerate the start of construction.

A "third generation" computer, Dr. Sills said, will be installed in the college's laundry room which will be converted into a computer center with $20,000 from the dormitory reserve fund.

Divulging the new campus plan, Dr. Sills said the college is acquiring a number of properties on Prospect and Normal Streets for construction of a new administration building.

Dr. Sills said he would like to see a peripheral road around the campus and show the new campus plan to the public.

In December, Dr. Sills met with Arthur Wiesenberger, a representative of an Allentown architectural and engineering firm that specializes in aerial projections and campus planning.

Dr. Sills expects the new campus plan will be completed in three to four months.

Dr. Sills revealed the highlights of a Board of Pennsylvania State College presidents meeting which he attended in December.

The board of presidents went on record as being opposed to state college student funds being sent to Harrisburg. These funds come from Pennsylvania state college student activities' fees which are $25 a semester for each ESSC student.

At present, the funds are in control of the Student Senate and remain on campus.

It has been reported that Harrisburg has made overtures to have these funds sent back to the state capital.

Dr. Sills outlined to the board a plan for a 10-week summer session for 150 freshman students. The plan, he said, would promote more opportunities for economically deprived or disadvantaged students at Pennsylvania state colleges.

Special attention would be given to students in the areas of small classes, and tutoring will be provided if necessary, he added.

In other business, the board agreed that a letter of condolence should be sent to the family of Dr. Theodore M. Moore, Stroudsburg R.D. 1, director of admissions at ESSC, who died Monday.

Board member Maxwell Cohen requested a survey of ESSC admission procedures based on a five-year projected student enrollment, cost estimates and a comparison study.

Cohen said he would like to see if ESSC is on a competitive status in cost, time and space analysis estimates with other state colleges.

Board President Dr. William Humphries inquired about the lack of funds for the inauguration of a state college president.

Dr. Sills will be inaugurated at ESSC in May.

Dr. Sills suggested that any ESSC inauguration expenses be made available from local funds.

According to an authoritative ESSC source the cost of Edinboro State College president's inauguration in 1967 was $10,000.

The same source estimated that president Sills' inauguration will cost ESSC about $1,000.

Recording wrong address deprives firemen of funds

By FRED WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Several volunteer township fire companies in Monroe County are apparently being deprived of an undetermined amount of potential revenue in the form of State fire insurance payments.

Fire companies have been the victim in the loss of revenue, but the matter appears to be an administrative problem in Harrisburg.

The situation stems from investigated reports that foreign fire insurance policies of property owners are not correctly stating the location of the insured property and that the policies apparently then only reflect the policy holders mailing address.

The conflict occurs in a situation such as between Stroud Township and Stroudsburg Borough.

A Stroud Township resident will take out a fire insurance policy and will not designate that the property is in the township. If the resident carries a Stroudsburg mailing address, the policy will reflect only the mailing address.

When reports are compiled in Harrisburg to determine distribution of insurance payments, the only basis for making allocations is the policy.

Accordingly, an incorrect entry of property location which is being serviced by a township fire company, is actually cheating the township of the payment which is illegally being transferred to the borough.

The situation is repeated throughout Monroe County and other parts of Pennsylvania.

According to state officials, nothing can be done about this situation except for proper location entry in the reports as submitted by the foreign fire insurance agents.

All out of state insurance companies doing business in Pennsylvania pays the state two per cent of all premiums collected. The state then distributes the money to fire companies.

The Bureau of Corporate Taxes, Department of Revenue, in Harrisburg is responsible for authorizing payment of the two per cent gross premium tax or rebate. Joseph Sullivan, of the BCT, explained it as follows:

"Foreign fire insurance agencies file annual reports by April 15 with the department of revenue. The reports are compiled and broken down according to the political subdivisions as coded on the submitted reports. This is the only basis for determining where the rebate goes," Sullivan said.

"If the agent codes its as Stroudsburg, although the policy holder's property is in Stroud Township, it will be allocated to the borough of Stroudsburg. We have no control over this. We are aware of this problem. It is statewide," Sullivan said.

"We have no policing power here. Its up to each fire insurance agency to correct this," Sullivan said.

Firemen's Relief Associations through the state have continuously made efforts to bring about legislation to correct this.

Stroud Township Fire Chief Lester Rice said the township's Firemen's Relief Association has been active in investigating the situation.

Rice said the fire insurance rebates are used by the relief association but so far we haven't even got enough to insure our own firemen and have to borrow money from the regular fire company fund.

Rice said that in 1968 the township received about $2,000, while East Stroudsburg received $4,000.

Stroud Twp., however, has a larger population than either borough and, presumably, more fire insurance is in effect in the township.

R. M. Frantz to head local YMCA

STROUDSBURG — Richard M. Frantz was reelected president of the Monroe County Young Men's Christian Assn. during the regular monthly meeting this week.

Other officers reelected are: Robert Clark, first vice president; Edward Hofner, second vice president; William Moran, treasurer; Rose Schoch was elected recording secretary.

Directors approved the $72,361 budget for 1969.

Moran told directors that the 1969 plans are to eliminate a $12,000 loan incurred in 1966. The loan had accumulated due to unforeseen items and repairs.

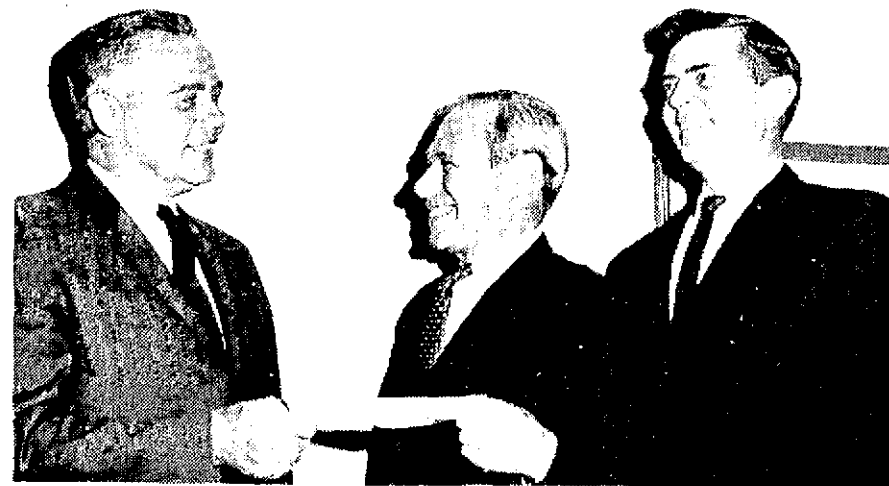

Francis Drake, finance chairman, explained the need for action now to provide for present and future Y needs.

ESSC's football coach added to staff of prestigious Coach-of-Year Clinic

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College head football coach Charles Reese has accepted an invitation to speak at the Washington, D.C. Football Coach-of-the-Year Clinic, Feb. 14-16.

The clinic has become the most popular event on the national sports calendar for football coaches.

In accepting the invitation, Reese will be joining a staff of guest speakers from the country's outstanding football teams of 1968.

The list of notables is headlined by Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State. Paterno guided his Nittany Lions to an 11-0 season topped off by a last-minute victory over the University of Kansas in the Orange Bowl.

Paterno was voted the Coach of the Year by his colleagues.

Although the program list is

Charles Reese

University of Kansas, who fell victim to Paterno's tactics, and Vince Dooley, head coach of the University of Georgia.

Others are Frank Jones, University of Richmond; Duffy Dougherty, Michigan State; Cal Stoll, Wake Forest University; Marv Levy, William and Mary; and Bud Wilkinson, former head coach of the University of Oklahoma and presently of ABC Sports.

Selected high school coaches will also speak.

Reese will talk on coaching a small college football team and the psychological approach to coaching, and in particular coaching of the offense.

Reese led his Warriors to an undefeated season in the Pennsylvania College Athletic Conference and to a share of the conference championship following a tie game with California for the crown.

He is a former graduate of West Chester State College where he played football.

Following his graduation from West Chester, Reese was a successful football coach at Chambersburg High in Pennsylvania.

Reese joined the ESSC coaching staff under head coach Jack Gregory and assumed head coaching duties three years ago when Gregory departed to take a coaching job at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Gregory later became head coach at Villanova University.

Reese is noted for his wide open style of football. Last year his team ranked among the top ten in total offense.

One of his chief assets is the ability to recruit players without benefit of scholarships.

John Eiler athletic director of ESSC, is expected to attend the clinic with Reese.

Foster retains championship with first round victory

NEW YORK (UPI)—Light heavyweight champion Bob Foster got off the canvas and whiplashed over a crashing barrage of punches to knock down Frank DePaula three times in the first round for a technical knockout victory in their title bout Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.

DePaula, a 5-1 underdog, decked the 6-foot-4 champion with a left to the head and a right to the liver in the first minute of the bout that had the near sellout crowd on its feet screaming for an upset.

But Foster jumped up without a count and nodded to his corner immediately that he was not hurt as referee Johnny Lombardo tolled the mandatory eight.

Then came the onslaught that DePaula, a street corner brawler who never learned defense was unable to cope with. Just seconds after getting off the canvas, the lanky titleholder from Washington, D.C. decked the Jersey City challenger with a looping right to the temple.

The challenger, who was seven inches shorter, obviously was hurt but he leaped up gamely to charge into another bombardment and go down a second time.

Foster calmly measured the 173-pound DePaula, who had a 1-2-pound weight advantage, and smashed him to the canvas the third time with a series of left hooks and a cracking right for a mandatory technical knockout victory with 2:17 gone in the scheduled 15-round bout.

It was Foster's first defense of the title he won from Dick Tiger last May with a fourth round knockout, and it was one of the most impressive punching displays he has ever performed.

The 30-year-old champion ran his record to 34-4 with the victory while DePaula's dropped to 18-7-3.

A huge crowd of more than 16,000 crowded into the Garden hoping DePaula might pull off a surprise, although most ring observers hadn't given him a chance.

Foster came out and threw two halfhearted jabs as he moved rapidly to his left to avoid DePaula's power, but the 28-year-old brawler ducked beneath Foster's defense and connected with a flurry to the stomach.

The crowd—including New York Jet quarterback Joe Namath, who got a standing ovation when he went in DePaula's corner to wish him well—jumped up hopefully, but Foster again took control with his looping punches.

However, Frankie again ducked under the long arms to put down Foster. The knockdown was more from a slip than an actual punch, but Lombardo counted while DePaula jubilantly stood in a corner.

Then came more of Foster's trademarked jabs to stun, DePaula several times and the three quick trips to the canvas.

Eastburg swimmers downed

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg High swimming team could salvage only one first place Wednesday as they were defeated by Freedom High, 73-22.

Four other East Stroudsburg tankers managed second place finishes: Rich Davies, 200 yard freestyle; Jeff Halterman, 200 yard individual medley; John Romansky, 100 yard backstroke; and Gary Boushell, diving.

Tom Ruth of Freedom set a new pool record at East Stroudsburg as he swam the 400 yard freestyle in 4:13.8. The previous record had been 4:40.

Chicago bumps Boston

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Bulls, trailing by 15 points in the first half, rallied in the final two quarters Wednesday night to upset the Boston Celtics 95-94 in a National Basketball Association game.

Barry Clemens sparked the Bulls' comeback in the final period when they erased Boston's last lead of two points as he tallied nine of his 15 points in the comeback. Bob Boozer, however, was Chicago's leading pointmaker with 21.

The Bulls played the final 20 minutes of the game without their flashy 7-foot rookie center, Tom Boerwinkle, who was ejected with eight minutes left in the third period when he drew two technical fouls in 36 seconds. It was the second win for the Bulls in the last five games and kept them in third place in the Western Division.

Sam Jones paced the Boston scoring with 24 and Bailey Howell tallied 22.

MacDonald declared ineligible

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College wrestling coach Red Witman Wednesday announced that the Warriors' senior co-captain Gerry MacDonald has been declared scholastically ineligible.

MacDonald has been a standout for the Warriors in the 145 pound class.

Witman said that he was not quite sure of MacDonald's long range future, but "as of now he is ineligible."

Witman said MacDonald will definitely miss the next two matches against Millersville, tonight, and Shippensburg on Saturday.

He added that MacDonald could possibly miss the rest of the season.

According to Witman, there will be several changes in his lineup for the Millersville contest.

Dan Rossi will be filling in for MacDonald at 145. Rossi had been wrestling at 152.

Replacing Rossi at 152 will be Tom Huber. Tom Lauder, wrestling his first varsity match will be going at the 177 pound class and Tom Kiziz will be wrestling at 191.

The final change will be Tommy Best going at 137. Best beat out Tony Petack in the wrestle-offs held this week.

The Warriors' Fred Epler, wrestling in the 167 pound class, will be going against his brother, Dave, who will be wearing the black and gold of the Millersville Marauders.

Pistons edge LA, 116-115

DETROIT (UPI)—Eddie Miles hit 20 of his 25 points in the first half and scored the game-winning basket with 1:16 to go Wednesday night as the Detroit Pistons fought off the Los Angeles Lakers 116-115 in a National Basketball Association game.

The Lakers, trailing by as many as 23 points in the first half, climbed back into contention with spurts in the third and fourth quarters. With 54 seconds remaining, Laker guard Fred Crawford missed three straight free throws in an attempt to put his team into the lead.

Los Angeles got the ball again in the final seconds, however, but Elgin Baylor's desperate, driving layup rimmed the basket and time expired.

Los Angeles, the first-place team in the NBA's Western Division, ran into a hot-shooting Piston team in the first part of the game. The Lakers appeared weary after traveling more than seven hours on a bus from Milwaukee, Wis., where they played Tuesday night.

Detroit, which has won six of its last eight games, lost coach Paul Seymour after he suffered his second technical foul in the third quarter for disputing a call.

Walt Bellamy, who hauled down 21 rebounds, finished the game with 24 points for Detroit while teammate Dave Bing chipped in 21.

Cavaliers' Parryman eligible

EAST STROUDSBURG — Ralph O. Burrows, East Stroudsburg Area High School principal, Wednesday denied rumors that an ineligible student is playing on the school's varsity basketball team.

Burrows said he has investigated the resident requirements of Arthur Parryman, a student who recently moved into the district.

Burrows, who is also chairman of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association's District 11, said he had heard the rumor and talked with Parryman before Tuesday night's game against Bangor.

He said he is satisfied that Parryman meets the school district's resident requirements.

Burrows said the youth and his mother are living with an aunt in East Stroudsburg and Parryman's mother is maintaining a legal residence in the borough.

Warriors' Csencsits named collegiate scholar athlete

NORTHAMPTON — Edward A. Csencsits of East Stroudsburg State College, Turney Gratz of Moravian and Bradley M. Fox of Lehigh will be among the six collegiate scholar athletes to be honored Monday by the Lehigh Valley Chapter, National Football Foundation.

The affair will be held in the Memorial Community Center, Northampton.

Csencsits, a resident of Whitehall Township, Lehigh County, broke all forward pass reception records at East Stroudsburg.

He was named all-state college conference end and won honorable mention in the Associated Press Little All-America selections.

The 6-1, 206-pound end is near the upper fourth of his class.

Gratz resides at 823 Porter St., Easton. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Turney T. Gratz years, he was a starter the last two seasons.

A political science major, Gratz is a president of the United States government group and a member of the Sigma Phi Omega fraternity.

Fox, Lehigh's 5-8, 170-pound defensive safetyman, is a son of Harold B. Fox, Bound Brook, N.J.

He stands second in a class of 33 in the business administration school with a 3.43 out of a possible 4.0 average. In one semester of his junior year he scored a 4.0.

Fox won scholarship honors in his first three years and received the Terry Schiff memorial scholarship of his fraternity last year.

Fox was in the class cabinet his sophomore and junior years. He is a member of the Interfraternity Council and the Omicron Delta Epsilon economic fraternity.

76ers' hustle whips Knicks in double overtime, 140-137

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia 76ers, stealing several crucial passes, defeated the New York Knicks 140-137 in double overtime Wednesday night.

The 76ers trailed by as many as 16 points early in the game and were still down 118-114 with 13 seconds remaining in regulation time. Chet Walker's layup and steal of a pass from Bill Bradley set up a game-tying eight-foot jump shot by Hal Greer with two seconds left.

Philadelphia fell behind 123-120 after a minute and a half of the first overtime but a hook shot by Billy Cunningham, the night's top scorer with 44 points, and three points by Walker put the 76ers ahead.

The 76ers fell behind by three points early in the second overtime. John Green's stuff shot cut it to 132-131 then Archie Clark stole Reed's inbound pass and hit a jumper to put the 76ers in front.

Six seconds later, Cunningham stole a pass from Walt Frazier to set up a layup by Green, to keep the winners ahead for good.

Reed had 35 points to lead the Knicks, who were without the services of Cazzie Russell, who suffered a fractured ankle Wednesday night.

Cazzie Russell, the New York Knicks' second leading scorer, lies in his bed at St. Clare's Hospital Wednesday with a weary look on his face. Russell broke his ankle Tuesday in a game with the Seattle SuperSonics. He will be lost to the Knicks for the remainder of the season. (UPI Telephoto)

Russell lost to Knicks for remainder of season

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cazzie Russell of the New York Knickerbockers, who suffered a broken right ankle in Tuesday night's game with the Seattle SuperSonics, will be lost to his team for the remainder of the regular season but may return in time for the playoffs.

The Knicks said Wednesday that Russell's right ankle will be placed in a cast for six or seven weeks and that he would remain in St. Clare's Hospital for the next few days.

At the time of his injury, Russell was the Knicks' second leading scorer with an average of 18.3 points per game. He scored 18 points Tuesday night before being injured in helping the Knicks to a 113-106 triumph.

Russell's injury is the second major one to confront the Knicks in the past two weeks. Phil Jackson, a valuable sub, injured his back recently and is currently in traction in St. Clare's.

The Knicks, who are down to nine men on their roster, will move Bill Bradley into the starting lineup to replace Russell.

New York, which has won 17 of its last 19 games, is in fourth place in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division. Only four teams in each division qualify for the playoffs which are scheduled to begin the last week in March.

Crosby Pro-Am features Nicklaus' 1969 tour debut

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus makes his 1969 debut today in the $150,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, and he and the rest of the touring pros should find it easy to score over the tourney's three courses because of anticipated rule changes.

Rain, which has been falling in Northern California for a week now, left Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill wet and muddy. It only sprinkled a bit on Wednesday as the pros and their amateur partners tried to get in one more practice round.

Jack Tuthill, PGA tournament director and the man who has the authority to make any rule changes, said he was considering "some modifications" mostly because of mud.

"We may let the players wipe the ball if it lands in the mud," said Tuthill, after a careful inspection of the three courses. "This isn't an official tourney as such and it would be a shame not to do everything possible to insure better play, especially for the amateurs. Certainly, there is no fun for the pros either in trying to hit an oval shaped ball."

Nicklaus, who won the 1967 Crosby and then finished eighth a year ago, has been idle since the Sahara tournament last fall. He won $155,285 in 1968 anyway and hasn't been doing much of anything the past few months.

Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, U. S. Open champ Lee Trevino, and Miller Barber, who won the rain-shortened Silverado Open earlier this week, also are on hand, as well as every man in the top 10 on the money winning list last year except Tom Weiskopf and Julius Boros.

Unofficial or not, first prize in the Crosby still comes to $25,000, and second money amounts to $12,500 with third place worth $7,000. Of the total purse of $150,000, $25,000 is in the pro-am pot so there is another $3,500 in first place money there.

The amateur field may not be the best as to talent but is representative of show business and professional sports. It also is the big drawing card in this tourney, which generally attracts crowds of up to 30,000 on Saturday and Sunday, weather permitting of course.

From its very start—back in 1937—the Crosby has drawn as much attention from the weather as it has as a tourney. The first clambake never even got started and being paid off the pros and settled for a three-day party instead. In 1952, Jimmy Demaret won when weather cut the event from 54 to 36 holes and in 1962 it showed snowed to wash out a couple of days.

This year, the weather remains uncertain. The forecast is for rains ending Wednesday night and clearing today. The forecasters are reluctant to predict beyond today.

The Kaiser Open at Napa was held up three days by rain and finally was called Monday with the payoff made at 36 holes. Barber won $13,500 there with the prize money distributed on a 50 per cent basis.

The Crosby field this year also includes nine foreigners—British Amateur champ Mike Bonallack and countrymen Peter Townsend and Tony Jacklin, Al Balding and George Knudson of Canada, Bruce Devlin of Australia, Harold Henning of South Africa and Roberto Bernardini and Dino Canonica of Italy.

Ford joins Yankee's TV team

NEW YORK (UPI)—Whitey Ford will be back at Yankee Stadium this summer, after all. But it'll be in a rather unusual spot.

Ford, who resigned earlier this winter as Yankee first base coach to devote full time to his business activities, has agreed to serve as an "analyst" with the Yankee broadcasting crew on TV for "about 50 home games" this summer on week-ends and nights.

Phil Rizzuto, Jerry Coleman and Frank Messer are the three regular Yankee announcers. Ford will serve only on the TV side analyzing the action. He said the night and weekend duty would not interfere with his business activities.

The Yanks also announced that Rocky Colavito will return to the Yanks as batting instructor and special assignment scout. Colavito will work mainly with developing minor league hitters.

Wolman has legal conference

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Jerry Wolman, owner of the Philadelphia Eagles, turned to his attorney Wednesday for advice before taking any steps to shore up his shaky financial empire and save the football team.

Wolman scheduled the legal conference after federal bankruptcy referee Joseph O. Kaiser announced in Baltimore on Tuesday that he planned a public auction to sell the Eagles to the highest bidder, who would take over the club only if Wolman fails to pay off more than $36 million in debts before May 1.

Kaiser's announcement came a few days after it was disclosed that trucking executive Leonard Tose, 51, Wayne, Pa., had offered $15.1 million for the Eagles, the highest sum ever laid on the line for a sports franchise.

U. of Pittsburgh continues search for head grid coach

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The University of Pittsburgh was still without a football coach Wednesday after Lloyd Eaton returned to Wyoming without saying yes or no.

Eaton, the latest in a string of top candidates for the Pitt job, went back home as quietly as he arrived. The official line at Pitt remained a terse "no comment."

But it appeared likely the Wyoming coach can have the Pitt job if he wants it according to a source close to the Pitt athletic scene.

"It's a mutual thing," the source said. "If he wants the job, we'll offer it to him." Pitt officials, stung three times in the last month, have been unusually tight-lipped and secretive this week. They refused even to confirm Eaton's presence in town until he had departed.

News of his visit, however, quickly leaked out—and what's more, it was learned that two of Eaton's top assistant coaches accompanied him.

There are three reasons for Pitt's secrecy—Jack Wiley, Frank Kush and Dee Andros.

Wiley, a former Pitt assistant, was first in line. Insiders say he was offered the job, but that Casimir Myslinski withdrew the offer after he became athletic director Dec. 24.

Kush, head coach at Arizona State, accepted the Pitt job Jan. 4 and backed off four days later, reportedly because his assistants, who had agreed to come to Pittsburgh, changed their minds.

Then Myslinski went after Andros, Oregon State's coach, last week, with a reported $28,000-a-year, five-year contract. But Andros decided to stay at Oregon State for "sentimental reasons"—including an estimated $7,500 salary hike and longer contract.

Reached at his home in Wyoming, Eaton was evasive. He said any comments would have to come from Myslinski. Asked if he would deny being in Pittsburgh, Eaton said, "No. I won't deny anything."

One of Eaton's assistants, Bill Baker, said Eaton's staff had discussed the situation and most of them would accompany Eaton to Pittsburgh if he took the job.

Baker accompanied Eaton on a recruiting trip to Lusk, Wyo., Wednesday night.

Myslinski refused to say Pitt's search centered around Eaton, who has a 50-20-2 record in seven seasons at Wyoming including a 10-0 mark in 1967. "I'm contacting some more people," he said Wednesday. But he refused to say whether any more coaches would be flown to Pittsburgh for interviews.

PMC grid coach resigns

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI)—Ed Lawless, former University of Pennsylvania quarterback, resigned Wednesday as head football coach at PMC Colleges because of business commitments.

The 40-year-old Lawless posted a 5-12 record during a two-year tenure at PMC. Before joining the Cadets, he coached for 17 years at Chestnut Hill Academy and Germantown Academy in Philadelphia, compiling an aggregate record of 91-28-6.

In 1944, when Lawless was 16 years old, he was the youngest player ever to hold down the post of quarterback for Penn. He later joined the Marine Corps, returning to Penn in 1946. Lawless was a member of the 1947 Ivy League championship Quaker team and also played on the 1948 eleven.

World Cup ski racers begin four-day meet

MEGEVE, France (UPI)—The 1969 World Cup ski racing circuit moved into France Wednesday with special slalom and downhill races scheduled for today through Sunday.

It will be halfway point for men and women skiers in their struggle for the season's top honors.

The four-day meet opens this morning in nearby St. Gervais with the women's special slalom on Friday. The men stage a downhill on the "Emile Allais" track back here in Megève.

Saturday's schedule includes the girls downhill in St. Gervais while the men's special slalom is scheduled for Megève on Sunday. There are no giant slalom events.

Snow conditions were far from ideal for the races, with a warm wind from the south bringing milder temperatures. Races were scheduled for early in the morning to take advantage of sub-zero temperatures at night.

But it will be tough on the late starters, with the soft, thawing snow breaking into treacherous ridges and even grassy patches.

Racers, both the men and women, generally were satisfied with morning training Wednesday. Afternoon practice was called off to spare the tracks.

All the same, Scott Henderson of the Canadian men's team and Anita Martin, an Australian girl racer suffered broken legs in falls while Gerry Rinaldi, another Canadian, pulled a cartilage.

Rinaldi's accident pointed to the possibility of numerous spills both in downhill nonstop training and the races themselves.

Rinaldi hit a soft spot, one ski dragged behind the other, he veered off the track and hit a fence put up to prevent snow drifts forming.

It will be the fourth out of nine special slalom races for the women and their third downhill out of five for the 1969 world cup.

For the men it will be the fourth special slalom out of nine and the third downhill out of seven. Gertrud Gabl of Austria was top favorite for the girls special slalom and Wilfrud Drexel of Austria, together with Anne Panose, favorites for the downhill.

Karl Schranz, winner of the Lauberhorn and Haanenkamm downhills and runaway leader in cup standings, was heavily favored for the men's downhill together with young Henri Duvillard of France, a native of Megève.

Patrick Russell, the powerful young Frenchman, was considered the man to watch in the special slalom Sunday.

Rosewall's upset may be costly

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI)—Andres Gimeno of Spain scored a shocking 7-5, 6-1, 6-4 upset over Australia's Ken Rosewall Wednesday and in so doing may have cut sharply into the gate of the first Australian open tennis championships.

Gimeno's triumph, one of two major upsets to highlight Wednesday's play, was only the Spaniard's first over Rosewall in their last seven matches, but it couldn't have come at a worse time as far as the backers of the tournament are concerned.

Rosewall's departure from the tournament is certain to affect the gate, which already is far below what was originally expected. Only 4,000 turned out Wednesday to watch their heroes in action.

Despite intermittent showers which made the courts slippery, the Australian players didn't disappoint their fans.

Top-seeded Rod Laver had a relatively easy time in disposing of countryman Roy Emerson 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 9-7. Fred Stolle turned back Alan Stone 6-6, 6-4, 6-2. John Newcombe defeated South Africa's Ray Moore 6-2, 6-4, 6-3. Ray Ruffels beat Thomas Lejus of Russia 6-2, 6-1, 6-3 and Bill Bowrey scored the day's second biggest upset by downing veteran Pancho Gonzalez of Los Angeles 5-3, 6-0, 11-9.

Butch Buchholz of St. Louis savored a measure of victory for America by defeating countryman Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., 1-6, 4-6, 7-5, 6-1, 6-4.

In women's singles, Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., beat Karen Karantzke of Australia 11-9, 7-5. Margaret Court of Australia defeated Rosemary Casals of San Francisco 6-4, 6-1. Kerry Melville of Australia whipped Helen Gourlay 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 and Mrs. Ann Haydon-Jones of England stopped Leslie Hunt 6-0, 6-1.

Gimeno took advantage of Rosewall's seeming lack of concentration and the soggy turf to overpower his opponent in what was expected to be the best match of the day.

We never advertise a special sale item unless we have an ample supply. Once in a great while, the special is more popular than we imagined. So occasionally, we do run out of the item.

But we never "run out" on a sale.

If the item is sold out, just ask the manager for a "RAIN CHECK".

An A&P Rain Check is a certificate that entitles you to buy the item at the same special price, the following week.

We think that's the fair thing to do. We think that shows "WE CARE".

Last Jews of Cochin to pull out

COCHIN, Kerala State, India (AP)—Birthdays are hardly the time to think about extinction. But the 78 Jews of Cochin, remnant of a once flourishing community, had their own disappearance from India very much in mind as they celebrated their synagogue's 400th anniversary.

"We want to say thank you to India and then say goodbye," remarked Nappy Koder, a young engineer who plans to transplant his life and family to Israel within a year.

"We are not happy here," Nappy's uncle, Elias Koder, added. "The government is taking too much for taxes—and yet they won't let us take our property to Israel."

The government's policy is anything but clear, though a family head is allowed to take out less than $5,000 in rupees—and no property. The Cochin Jews want to remove their synagogue's holy scrolls, books, relics and religious ornaments.

The young are going to Israel to join 2,500 Cochin Jews already settled there; the middle aged, like Uncle Elias, are tied to their sometimes considerable property here; the elderly are dying off.

Three Cochin girls in their early 20s, interrupting themselves with bursts of self-conscious laughter, explained that there is only "one eligible man" in the community, a 22-year-old who seems to be holding out for an Israeli bride.

"Of course, there are several permanent bachelors in their 30s," said one girl, dressed like the others in western clothes. "And there are three boys under 20, all 17."

They refused to commit themselves to any marital strategy—but nodded that, yes, they would probably wait until they settled in Israel.

One unspoken reason for their patience is the genetic fact that the Cochin Jews are dangerously intermarried and, as several privately admitted, in serious need of fresh blood for their unborn children.

"We are all related to one another in some way," explained one member of the Koder family, with a wave of his hand down "Jew Street," the narrow, extremely tidy, whitewashed enclave where almost all of the Cochin Jews live.

With only three real families left—the Koders, the Halleguas and the Robys—and assorted members of six others, the Cochin Jews are aware that Jew Street and its lovely synagogue will be a lifeless museum within a generation.

Still, they continue to lead their closely knit life, which is built around Sabbath worship. The community has no rabbi, and the responsibility for leading prayers rotates among the members of the "minyan"—men over 13 who have had their Bar Mitzvah.

Happily, the Cochin Jews will suffer no privations while in India.

Many have done well on their own, and the leader of the community, Satio Koder, employs many of his relatives in his seven department stores and the Cochin Electrical Co.

In the nearby town of Ernakulam lives a far more ancient community known as the Black Jews for their dark complexions—in contrast to the light-skinned Cochin Jews. The 160 member community has melded itself so completely and inconspicuously into Kerala society that Ernakulam taxi drivers, police officers and self-appointed tourist guides are unaware of its existence.

Hughes buys Vegas Tower

The U.S. Justice Department late last week approved Howard Hughes' purchase of the $17.3 million Landmark Tower on the "second strip" along Paradise Road in Las Vegas. At right rear is International Hotel which when completed will be largest in world with over 3,000 rooms. It had been rumored that Hughes' acquisition would be blocked by government on monopolistic grounds.

Vigilantes patrol in Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Armed with machetes, flashlights and suspicion, neighborhood vigilantes are patrolling Cuba at night in response to an outbreak of vandalism, arson and sabotage.

It is virtually impossible to approach even the smallest government building or hang around a street corner too long without being challenged.

The patrols are being carried out by the militant Committees of the Defense of the Revolution, whose membership approaches 2.5 million. Cuba's population is about eight million.

There are no firm estimates of the number of Cubans involved, but 173 of the CDR's 215 zones in Matanzas Province have patrols. All six provinces and the Isle of Pines are included in the new night vigilance program. In Havana Province, it was announced, 89,750 took part in patrols and block-guarding duties in a typical week.

Many of the patrols include women.

The patrols work closely with police and the Interior Ministry. Last April the ministry began special night motorcycle patrols in Havana. Riding in the sidecars were CDR members.

The nationwide campaign, however, came as a result of a speech by Prime Minister Fidel Castro in late September reporting more than 50 cases of sabotage and vandalism. Castro called on the CDR for more vigilance. The result: night patrols.

In covering their beats, CDR members watch closely grocery stores and dry cleaning shops, frequent burglary targets because of the nation's food and clothing shortages. People with packages that might contain black market goods are subject to search.

Another preoccupation of the CDR patrols in public telephones, hard hit by vandals and public abuse since Castro declared them free nearly a year and a half ago. It is estimated conservatively that one fifth of the public telephones in Havana do not work. Recently only one public telephone at Jose Marti International Airport was usable.

Patrols also maintain a lookout for auto parts thieves, juvenile delinquents and loiterers.

Key government installations remain guarded by soldiers and the armed militia, but the CDR patrols, usually three or four persons, are nearby, keeping in contact with the motorcycle patrols and their zone headquarters.

Patrol members normally are identifiable by an armband. Most carry only flashlights, but some have old machetes and clubs.

At instruction meetings they are briefed by state security police on enemy tactics, imperialism and its "modern scientific methods," meaning the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. Castro said in his report on sabotage cases that the CIA sponsored six Cubans arrested in October for burning down a government clothing warehouse.

Irish clergyman has many targets

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—The Rev. Ian Paisley, leader of the militant Protestants in Northern Ireland's religious feuding, is a hard-hitting orator with a powerful list of targets.

They start with the Pope and the Archbishop of Canterbury, continue through the Northern Ireland government and its prime minister, and go on to the British Broadcasting Corp., newspapers, drink, the devil and all his works.

Critics, both Roman Catholic and moderate Protestants, have called him a primitive bigot.

Paisley replies: "If it is primitive to be Protestant then we will be primitive."

"If it is bigoted to believe in freedom, then I am a bigot."

"If bigotry derives from By God, which is what the Inquisition martyrs said as they went to the stake, then I'm bigoted. If it means violence and intolerance, then I'm not."

Ian Richard Kyle Paisley, born 42 years ago the son of a County Down preacher, is moderator of the Free Presbyterian church, one of a dozen or so sects which flourish in the red brick streets of Protestant Belfast.

Ten years ago he and his church were seldom heard of. Today he is a major influence in Irish politics and in the centuries-old argument between Ireland's Protestants and Catholics.

His main support is drawn from Belfast's Sandymount and Shankill Road, working class areas where scarcely a wall lacks a symbol denouncing the Pope.

In country districts, where Roman Catholics are often in the majority, he has the backing of Protestant farmers who believe their homes would be threatened by any accommodation with the Catholic-dominated Irish Republic to the south.

An independent poll last year indicated Paisley had the support of 200,000 of Northern Ireland's 1½ million population.

Actual membership of his church is probably nearer 20,000 and certainly far short of the province's 400,000 orthodox Presbyterians, from whom his organization seceded 30 years ago.

His home parish, Ravenhill, is building a new church for a congregation of 2,000. Paisley regularly packs the same number into Sunday meetings at Belfast's Ulster Hall.

In their confrontations with the mainly Catholic civil rights demonstrators, who claim discrimination by the government, Paisley supporters wave the Union Jack and sing "God Save the Queen."

To Paisley's people, the demonstrators are "Papishes", disloyal to the North's union with Britain and a threat to jobs and homes should they ever unite Ireland under Catholic rule.

The 17th century's great battles still are fresh in militant minds—the Battle of the Boyne, when Protestant William of Orange defeated the Catholic forces of James II, and the siege of Londonderry, whose stone wall withstood a Catholic army.

Thieves hit Mt. Pocono laundry

MT. POCONO — Mount Pocono Borough Police are investigating three burglaries which occurred over the weekend.

Sunday at 3:55 a.m. burglars forced a back door at an automatic laundry on Main Street, ripped the change maker off the wall and made off with approximately $300.

Friday night, the summer home of William Devine on Knob Rd. had the front door forced open and the window in the front door smashed. Burglars made off with a stereophonic record player.

Last Thursday, the home of Dr. Frank Fierro, also on Knob Rd., was broken into and two television sets valued at $1,000 taken.

Mount Pocono Police Chief James Carey said one set was a 23-inch RCA and the other a 17-inch Zenith portable set.

Entrance into the home was made by cutting the screen on the front porch door and then cutting a hole in the plate glass of the front door.
